

Pearlington man surprises burglars

BY DENA BISNETTE

A Pearlington man who stopped three men from burglarizing his home on Tuesday says law enforcement officers deserve more help from the public.

Frank Ripppo lives off US-90, but his house is in an isolated area surrounded by woods. He has been the victim of at least four burglary attempts in the past three months.

He said it felt "quite satisfac-

"We've been having a lot of situations in Pearlington where people steal aluminum and copper and sell it. That, and the woods all around his house, would be why they picked Mr. Ripppo," Hoda said.

"They had bags with aluminum cans in them."

The investigator said Ripppo held one of the suspects at gunpoint for a time and had secured him until Deputies Dennis Tarravouille and George Burleson and Auxiliary Deputy Eddie decided that no one would return if his vehicle was parked in front of the house.

He was wrong about that—twice, he has seen suspicious vehicles when his truck was plainly visible from the highway.

He still does not know if the three who tried to rob him Tuesday were the same ones who broke up his windows, but he is sure they wanted the scrap metal.

He knows he had a couple of burglary attempts since the one where the windows were destroyed, because he has seen the vehicles and one time, the perpetrators kicked down the door of his house and found a surprise—his pet German shepherd.

The dog was the one who told

The public tends to look away, and the police need help. People need to tell them about suspicious goings-on and help each other. They should look after their neighbors"—Ripppo tory" when he was able to help the Hancock County Sheriff's Department capture two of the three men he surprised Tuesday afternoon.

Sheriff's Investigator Nathan Hoda said the two arrested were Robert E. Parker, 20, and Anthony J. Spano, 18, both of Slidell. A third suspect fled into the woods but Hoda said an arrest is likely.

Parker and Spano are charged with attempted burglary, but Hoda said other charges may be added.

The investigator said Ripppo has a lot of aluminum windows and other metal items in his yard.

Thornton arrived at the scene.

Sometimes, citizens assist law enforcement officers by capturing a suspect as Ripppo did, Hoda said.

"It doesn't happen too often, but it does happen."

Ripppo said he began looking for burglaries at his home after a January incident in which a number of aluminum windows stored in his yard were broken into pieces.

"Those were good aluminum windows. I'll be a hundred years picking up glass out there," he said.

Believing the people who broke them up would return, he began watching, but eventually

Alcohol-related accident kills two in Kiln Sunday

BY D.C. HARVILL

Two people died Sunday evening in an alcohol-related accident on Highway 603.

A vehicle driven by Aubrey J. Brooks III of Picayune went out of control and flipped numerous times after striking a car driven by an elderly Kiln man.

Brooks III, 27, was pronounced dead at the scene by Hancock County Medical Examiner Harold Stiglet. A passenger in Brooks' Ford Bronco, Rickey Breeland, 24, of Carriere, died later Sunday night while undergoing surgery at Hancock Medical Center.

According to Mississippi Highway Patrolman Eugene Little, witnesses reported that Hubert Bilbo, 73, stopped at the intersection and checked for traffic. Seeing no traffic, he then proceeded across the highway.

When Bilbo was halfway into the caution-lighted intersection, Brooks' Bronco appeared from around a curve to the south on 603, clipping the front bumper of Bilbo's Oldsmobile and sliding into the curb.

After hitting the curb, the Bronco flipped six or seven times, according to the witnesses.

From the point of impact, the Bronco travelled nearly 200 feet before coming to rest on its side in the middle of the highway, according to measurements taken at the scene Monday morning.

Judging from the distance the Bronco travelled after the collision, Little said it was probably driven at a high rate of speed.

An absence of skidmarks at the scene indicates that Brooks did not apply his brakes, Little added.

Brooks, Breeland and another passenger, Kenneth Lee, 29, of McNeil, all were thrown from the Bronco.

Lee was treated at Hancock Medical Center. A fourth passenger, James McKean, was not thrown from the vehicle and received only minor injuries. None of the four was wearing a seatbelt.

According to Stiglet, Brooks died from internal injuries and massive injuries to the head. Breeland died from internal injuries.

The accident was alcohol-related, Stiglet said.

Bilbo and his wife, Mary Ellen, 63, were uninjured.

Approximately 200 people congregated around the wreckage while emergency personnel worked to remove the victims and clear the highway, Stiglet said.

Little was assisted at the scene by personnel from the Hancock County Sheriff's Department, Kiln and Diamondhead Fire Departments, MobileMedic, and Bay St. Louis Police Department.

Bay to get mural if plans come true

BY D.C. HARVILL

If plans currently underway by a group of businessmen and a local artist become reality, Bay St. Louis may soon be embellished by a mural.

The Bay St. Louis Business Association Thursday night heard a proposal from artist John McDonald for a mural to be painted in the city's downtown area.

"We're going to study it further; we don't want to start something we can't finish," said Jim Thompson, president of the association.

"Right now we are trying to draw interest for the project, drum up supporters and secure a location," Thompson said.

The group also hopes to procure grant money for the mural.

According to Thompson, the association is investigating the possibility of doing the mural along the side of the old Mississippi Power Building on Main Street, recently purchased by the county.

"If we do it on a county building, it will become a county project—instead of just a city project. That also leaves it open for grants," Thompson said. "The Business Association is interested in the concept of beautification and in drawing out things of interest, history—the things we have here."

"Of course, it will also attract people into town," said antique shop owner Ed Jurkowski.

The association's idea for the mural's theme, as reflected in two sketches submitted by McDonald, calls for something of a historical juxtaposition showing the city's progression from its earliest beginnings

'Salute to Industry' to honor Stennis Space Center Friday

Hancock County's third annual Salute to Business and Industry will be held April 28 at the Diamondhead Country Club. Breakfast will be served at 7 a.m., and the program will begin at 7:30 a.m. The public is invited to attend.

According to Harold "Buz" Olsen, executive director of the Port and Harbor Commission, this year's salute will honor the John C. Stennis Space Center and the private companies which employ approximately 3,400 of the space center's 5,400 work force.

Keynote speaker for the program will be NASA's Bill Taylor, associate director of the Stennis Center. A video presentation will highlight 'Coast Encounters,' the community involvement program promoting math and science literacy.

The county's annual Salute to Business and Industry is sponsored by the Port and Harbor Commission in cooperation with the Board of Supervisors and the Chamber of Commerce.

In addition to the Stennis

Center and its private companies, four local enterprises will be honored at the breakfast program, according to Olsen.

County ditches must not be illegally filled

BY DENA BISNETTE

Filling in county ditches and other drainage structures is illegal.

Supervisor Robert Peterson said there have been a few incidences in which county ditches were filled during logging operations.

He said doing so not only disrupts the drainage in the area, but creates extra work and expense for the county when the ditches must be cleaned.

In addition, Peterson said the county will prosecute violators if they are caught. The crime is punishable by a fine.

Instead of filling in a ditch, Peterson stated, people should find out if the county can help with the problem.

They should contact Hancock County Maintenance Superintendent Sam Cuevas at the county's central maintenance barn in Kiln. The barn is open from 7 a.m. until 4 p.m. on weekdays and the telephone number is 255-3367.

Saturday slated as statewide clean-up day

Trash Bash '89, Mississippi's first annual statewide clean-up day, is Saturday, April 29.
Sponsored by the Mississippi State Highway Department, Trash Bash '89 is a day in which Adopt-A-Highway members band together to pick up litter along "adopted" sections of highway.
Groups participating in the Trash Bash are asked by the Highway Department to report the number of bags of litter collected to establish the results of the event.
The Adopt-A-Highway program is an anti-litter campaign established by the Highway Department to generate public involvement in keeping Mississippi highways litter free and to help reduce the high cost of litter removal.

Private and civic organizations are allowed to adopt sections of highway for a minimum of one year. These sections are kept litter free by the volunteer organizations.
In exchange for the volunteer work, the organizations receive credit for the work in the form of a large sign erected by the department on each end of the section that bears the group's name.
As of April 20, there have been 656 sections adopted. This represents approximately 1,380 miles or 14 percent of the total mileage available for adoption. Sections have been adopted in 65 of the 82 counties in Mississippi.

Family festival, volleyball tournament hosted in Ansley

Special to the Echo
By VIRGINIA THOMAS

The fourth annual family festival and volleyball tournament sponsored by St. Ann-St. John Parish will be held Saturday, May 6 and Sunday, May 7 at Ladner's Friendly Inn ball field in Ansley from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m. each day.

The two action-filled days of fun and excitement promises something for everyone.
In addition to the volleyball tournament, horseshoe tournament and shooting match there will be arts and crafts booths to explore with lovely gifts to purchase.

For the children and young-at-heart there will be the ever-popular funny and entertaining clowns and pony rides for the kiddies.

There will be continuous live music, Dixieland and Country, all day Saturday, with a special appearance by "Speedo and the Rocket 88's."

Judge Lee Klein, Supervisor Robert Peterson, Poochie and Christine Lusich promise some of the best barbecue ever. Also on the menu will be the usual hot dogs, hamburgers and potato salad. Let's not forget the cold drinks and all the goodies for those with a sweet tooth.

If looking for a way to spend two pleasant, relaxing and fun-filled days of excitement or just two hours of family fun—don't miss what Pat Corbell and her committees have planned.

ST. ANN CHURCH NEWS

A thought for meditation from our pastor, Father Justin Furman, ST.

"The love of God means the love of our neighbor. There is no better evidence, no truer proof of a great love of God, than a great love of our neighbor."

"Love of our neighbor is proven in patience and trial, in the corporal or spiritual works of mercy. A treatment of neighbor that is inconsiderate, harsh, unbrotherly or unsisterly, is un-Christ like, and argues a great want of the love of God."

—Father Thomas Augustine Judge, ST
Saturday, April 29, CCD classes are scheduled from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. in the parish hall.

Monday, May 1, CYO meets 7 p.m. in the parish hall. All parish teens are invited to attend.
Freddie West, Mary West, Tim Booth, Rene Williams, Rebecca Williams and adult advisors Raymond and Karen Williams represented St. Ann-St. John CYO last Saturday when the group participated in a tournament of sporting events with our deanery at the Sacred Heart Parish Center in Dedeaux last Saturday. Karen and Raymond are proud to report our group won five second place and one first place ribbons and also the Sportsmanship Trophy which is on display in the rear of St. Ann Church. Congratulations! We're proud of you.

According to Karen, it wasn't all fun and games. In between the sporting events there were two guest speakers who discussed the timely subjects of abortion and narcotics.

Attendance at the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass closed the busy day of sporting events and good fellowship. The action packed day ended with, what else? A dance!

Night birds welcome spring discreetly

Life's orgiastic, annual self-celebration, spring, has peaked. As if the green of every new leaf were a traffic signal flashing "GO", all of Nature is revved in a frenzied effort to perpetuate itself.

Each morning I awake to birds singing, a discordant array of notes arranged in layers of distance.

Outside, migrant "lookers", birds plumed in myriad states of splendor, flit among the greenery. Everywhere, 'flowers promiscuous shoot'.

Anything goes. The first, and among the most vocal and brightly hued, heralds of spring, male cardinals began advertising for mates long before the equinox. Now, they and their less colorful mates have young fledging in their nests.

More cautious, less brash about committing themselves to a wan conception of spring, chuck-will's-widows, however, wait until there is no doubt. The sun is settling deep into northern territory before they voice their approval.

This year, spring wasn't certain enough for the apprehensive birds until April 16, when, from my house in Waveland, I heard the first one calling.

I had always known the perennial vocalists as whip-poor-wills, but recently their identity was clouded for me when I learned most of the nocturnal vocalists are a close relative, the chuck-will's-widow. Both birds inhabit and call in the local woods.

Regardless of nom de plumes, as far into my childhood as I can remember, the birds' simple song has been to me spring-time's finest—awaited with less patience than the birds display in their delayed acknowledgement of spring.

Now that I am older, my appreciation of their music has not diminished—it has grown deeper. Theirs is not an overwhelmingly frenetic flash of song and dance—the plain, brown birds discreetly sing only after sunset.

Though repetitious, their plaintive, deceptively simple call is tastefully understated.

Their's could be the voice of the Earth sweetly lullabying her children to sleep.

For years, I have heard one of the birds calling from the same patch of Waveland woods. Recently, someone oblivious to the real value of the property cleared a road and installed streetlights nearby.

No song is heard there this year.

Change may be inevitable, but, when it deprives us of wholesome, heart-warming pleasures, it certainly isn't for the better.

THE CHARMER

Ralph Gorse seems to be the kind of man any decent young girl would be happy to bring home to mother—handsome, suave and excellent company. But that's all on the surface.

Underneath he's a con man and sexual adventurer whose many conquests are simply a means to what he wants most in life—money and power.

Ralph Gorse is "The Charmer." Nigel Havers portrays this cunning philanderer in a special six-parter on "Masterpiece Theatre."

Premiering at 9 p.m. Sunday, April 30 on Mississippi ETV, "The Charmer" is set in the roadhouses, boarding houses and seaside grand hotels of the 1930s and 1940s, when England was recovering from the Depression and ready to enter World War II. The story begins with Gorse intent on crashing the good life he can see but not touch, an ambition that eventually leads to murder.

EDITORIAL

Highway 603, what causes accidents?

Two deaths on Highway 603 resulting from an accident Sunday evening have many of those who use the vital roadway wondering just what causes so many accidents.

The number of fatalities attributed to accidents on Highway 603, not to mention the many who have been injured, have some motorists driving out of the way in order to avoid the highway's use.

Those in the know will tell you there is nothing wrong with the highway. They will say many of the accidents are alcohol-related, due to excessive speeding, or both, and some are caused by driver error.

There are a limited number of State Troopers assigned to Hancock County, yet the county has many miles of interstate and state highways.

The sheriff's department needs legislative approval to use radar in speed control, so it makes it hard for deputies to check speeds.

Then there are those night driving motorists who have only one headlight. They too use the winding highway which runs through the center of the county from north to south.

The speed limit on Highway 603 is 55 miles per hour with the exception of several areas with reduced speeds, such as Kiln and Hancock North Central's school intersection.

The highway has those 'Sunday afternoon drivers' who motor along at 35 or 40 mph in 55 mph zones and slow traffic down for blocks behind them.

There are several signs warning motorists of the reduced speed at the Kiln-DeLisle Road intersection.

Monday morning while officers were checking the scene of the accident from the evening before, it appeared several motorists including some 18-wheelers paid little attention to the fact that the speed limit was reduced to 40 miles per hour.

Highway 603 needs attention, possibly the most has to come from those who travel it, and if there are those who violate speed or equipment laws, they need to pay the price.

There have been far too many fatalities over the years on Highway 603.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

The month of April for some reason or the other has seemed very long to me, as I guess there have just been so many things going on.

There are still several things to come—such as the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission's Salute to Business and Industry.

This year the program, which will be held at the Diamondhead Country Club, will honor the John C. Stennis Space Center and the various companies which provide an array of vital services to the center's resident agencies.

The recognition of the Stennis Space Center comes at a very good time since we are now in the midst of NASA's 'Coast Encounters' promotion of science and mathematics in the Mississippi Gulf Coast Schools.

The Salute to Business and Industry breakfast will be at 7 a.m. on Friday and is in cooperation with the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce and Hancock County Board of Supervisors.

'Coast Encounters' continues with a flyover of over 110 aircraft of various models on Saturday afternoon beginning at 2 p.m.

The planes will fly along the coastline from Bay St. Louis to Pascagoula.

On Friday, a three-time All American winner in college football will be featured at the St. Stanislaus Invitational Golf Tournament at Diamondhead.

I am talking, of course, about Felix 'Doc' Blanchard, who received the prestigious Heisman Trophy while playing football at the United States Military Academy.

Blanchard is a 1942 graduate of St. Stanislaus and during his four years at the Bay St. Louis school starred on the football field and was named to the All-Gulf Coast Football Team.

At the Academy, Blanchard was a star who will long be remembered.

I am sure longtime friends of Blanchard in the area will be anxious to chat with him during his visit.

Doc retired after 25 years as a pilot in the United States Air Force in 1971 with the rank of colonel.

I wish all of those playing in the tournament good luck.

Special Session, April 21

Lawmakers left Jackson having reached agreement on the two issues that brought them back for a special session.

The House and Senate agreed on a $78.5 million capital improvements bond bill and also approved a full-time parole board.

Gov. Ray Mabus had called the three-day special session when legislators failed to come up with bills on the two items during the regular session that ended a few weeks ago.

Rep. J. P. Compretta voted with the majority in supporting the bond issue, which will build and repair dilapidated state buildings.

In the upper chamber, Sen. Gene Taylor was in favor of the full-time parole board, along with a majority of his colleagues.

The House added an amendment to the parole board bill that prevented Mabus from appointing to the board anyone who had contributed more than $500 to the governor's campaign.

Legislators said the amendment would insure that the board's makeup would not be politicized. Mabus regarded the addition as an insult, calling it a personal attack. The non-contributor amendment takes effect in 1992.

The final bonding bill was a compromise between the House's original plan, that called for only $67.7 million and the Senate version, which asked for $78.3 million.

The compromise also stipulated that a new $10 million Highway Department building would be built on state-owned land. The original bill called for buying nine acres on Mississippi 18 from Buddy Jenkins. Jenkins contributed $19,230 to Mabus' 1987 campaign.

The state university system gets $12.5 million in the capital improvements bill, and community colleges $10 million.

The full-time parole board replaces a part-time group that has a backlog of 700 cases. In 1988, a $3 million court judgment was made against three former board members who released Clem Jimpson. Jimpson then shot and paralyzed a Jackson bank official.

The legislature is next scheduled to convene in January, though a possibility still exists that it could be called back again for a special session to deal with Mabus' long-awaited package of education reform. The three-day session cost taxpayers $81,861.

HOUSE

HB 3. The House first voted for a package of $67.7 million in bonds for capital improvements to state buildings and to purchase property. The vote on this bill was 83 to 32 with seven absent or not voting. Compretta, yes.

Buelow and Nipper paired. Buelow would have voted yes, and Nipper would have voted no.

HB 3. Conference Report. The House approved a final $78.5 million compromise capital improvement bond measure by a vote of 89 to 32 with one absent or not voting. Compretta, yes.

SB 2002. Conference Report. The House approved changing the state parole board from a part-time to a full-time body by a vote of 82 to 33 with seven absent or not voting. Compretta, yes.

Buelow and Nipper paired. Buelow would have voted yes, and Nipper would have voted no.

SB 2002. Amendment #3. The House added an amendment that prohibited persons who contributed more than $500 to the governor's campaign from being named to the parole board. The amendment takes effect in 1992. Compretta, yes.

SENATE

HB 3. The Senate initially voted for a $78.3 million capital improvement bond measure. The vote on this bill was 47 to four with one vacancy. Taylor, no; Tate, yes.

HB 3. Conference Report. The Senate approved a final $78.5 million capital improvement bonding bill by a vote of 44 to six with one voting present and one vacancy. Taylor, no; Tate, yes.

SB 2002. Conference Report. The Senate approved a full-time parole board bill which included the House's amendment prohibiting the governor from appointing persons who contribute more than $500 to his campaign. The amendment takes effect in 1992. Taylor, yes; Tate, yes.

Sen. Wayne Burkes vacated his Senate seat for another elected position and therefore was not included in any of the above votes.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Every vote counts

To the Editor:

How many times do we hear, "One vote doesn't mean anything?" Well, anyone who believes this is very much mistaken.

By casting the one vote to which you are entitled, regardless of which candidate it is for, you show that you care enough about our system of government to use your vote.

We, as citizens, owe the men and women who have fallen in the defense of our country the time it takes to vote.

The right to vote is something that people around the world die for every day. Isn't it ironic that something so dear to others is something so many of us take for granted?

I ask you, as a friend and as an election commissioner, to take the time to vote in the upcoming elections. Remember, the vote is the most powerful weapon we have against our country's adversaries.

Sincerely,
Jim Ladner, Jr.
Chairman
Hancock County
Election Commission

Concern for animals shared by citizens

Dear Editor,

In reference to Waveland Animal Commissioner Dick Fitch's statement in Sunday's paper, "the Humane Society is the only one complaining," I would like to make it clear that the Humane Society is only making public the complaints that we receive from people all over the county who for one reason or another have to go into the Waveland Shelter.

Many of the complaints come from citizens of Waveland. When I tell them to complain at city hall, or to write a letter to the Echo, they say they are afraid to do so, or they feel their complaint will fall on deaf ears as it has in the past.

One person told me last week, "I sure hope something is going to be done to help those poor animals at the shelter, but don't give my name because I have a relative working for the City of Waveland."

About three weeks ago when the Waveland Shelter came up for discussion at the Board of Supervisors' meeting, a lady in the audience voiced her complaints. I did not even know the lady's name and she was there on other business.

So you see, Mr. Fitch, if all the people who are complaining about conditions at the Waveland Shelter would speak up all at once, the noise would be deafening.

Thyla P. Rogers

Humane Society

DANGEROUS INTERSECTION—Two people died as the result of an accident at this intersection on Highway 603 in Kiln Sunday evening. Some residents of the area say that if the trees to the left of the sign would be cleared, it would give those crossing the highway a better view of the intersection as many vehicles come flying around the curve on the dangerous roadway. Speed is reduced to 40 miles per hour at the intersection. (Staff photo by D.C. Harvill).

State taxes and you

The Mississippi Economic Council has published a report which examines the state's tax system and evaluates its performance.

The report, The Mississippi Tax System—A Search for Sufficiency, Efficiency, and Equity, offers a detailed examination of our system of taxation and what can be done to improve it.

MEC has broken down the tax structure into four general groups for the purpose of the study, and compared them with recognized tax principles.

The Council takes a close look at one aspect of taxation that many believe to be the most significant—tax effort vs. tax capacity.

Mississippians experience a heavy tax burden based on ability.

Economic growth

County supervisors, mayors are optimistic about future

Special to the Echo
by Lisa Monti

The mayors of Bay St. Louis and Waveland and the president of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors gave a unanimous "thumbs up" to the economic development efforts of the Port and Harbor Commission.

In recent interviews, the three elected officials also expressed positive expectations about the county's potential development, and applauded the cooperative spirit among the local political entities.

Board president Ronnie Cuevas said of the Port and Harbor Commission, "They've done an excellent job that will be beneficial to the county in the long run. In the next several years, I think you'll see major development at the port facility."

Said Waveland Mayor John Longo, "The Port and Harbor Commission is doing a wonderful job. They're very enthusiastic, and they have had a lot of good development."

Mayor Vic Frankiewicz of Bay St. Louis said, "In the last couple of years, we've seen a tremendous increase in the aggressiveness with which the commission is pursuing its job."

"At the same time, even though the economy is down generally, the commission's financial situation has improved. They are self-sustaining now, and I think that's a very, very good sign."

On the cooperation among local agencies and governmental officials, Longo stated, "I think basically that every agency, every dedicated elected official and every volunteer is making an effort to move Hancock County forward."

Frankiewicz described the local governments' working relationship as "excellent," adding, "We have better relations with the county now than we have ever had."

The city, he said, has been involved with the commission's efforts to attract new business and industry. "We've had many situations where, if a company is coming in, I'll participate in the meetings if there are issues that they want to know about concerning the city."

Stated Cuevas, "We've had a lot of good cooperation in the programs that we've had that involve the cities. The times of old, when everybody did their own little thing, have gone, basically because of the cost involved."

Consolidation sometimes pays off in dollars. A lot of times it won't necessarily save dollars, but it increases efficiency, and it certainly gives the public the idea that everyone is trying to cooperate and get the maximum for the tax dollar. That's what I think we're all in here trying to do, to ensure the taxpayer gets the most for his dollar."

Concerning the county's potential development, Longo said, "We've got the brightest future. We who are in office at this time are at the threshold of opening the doors of prosperity and success for Hancock County. If we drop the ball, nobody did it but us."

Cuevas said of the future, "We're very optimistic. We have several things right now that are in the works of developing into very, very beneficial economic development for the county."

Frankiewicz described the future as "fantastic." He observed, "The traditional heavy industrial-type growth that we've had, considering how the economy is, is still going really well. We've got some excellent prospects that the county is talking to now that are first-class industries."

"But what I think is even brighter for the county is the prospect for spinoff companies. There is really strong potential for that, growing out of activities at the Stennis Space Center."

Continuing, he pointed out, "I firmly believe that we are now where Huntsville, Ala. was 15 years ago. And if we're smart, we'll capture that."

Massive flyover features 100 aircraft

A large crowd is expected to turn out along the Mississippi Gulf Coast Saturday, April 29, to watch one of the most impressive arrays of aircraft ever to participate in a flyover in the state.

The air show is part of the NASA Community Involvement Program "Coast Encounters: A Space Age Adventure in Science Literacy for the Missisissippi Gulf Coast," which began April 16 and will continue through May 5 in Hancock, Harrison, Jackson and Pearl River counties.

Some 100 military and civilian pilots will fly their aircraft ranging from bi-winged planes of the Confederate Air Force to the mighty air-superior F-15 Eagle and F-16 Falcon.

The air show will begin at 2 p.m. and the aircraft will make their way down the shoreline of the Gulf Coast from Bay St. Louis to Pascagoula.

The planes will fly just above the waves nearly five feet off the water along the Coast.

Pilots from eight aviation organizations—the U.S. Air Force, the Mississippi Air National Guard, the U.S. Naval Air Station, the Experimental Aircraft Association, General Aviation, Phillips Aviation, the Confederate Air Force and the Baton Rouge (La.) Pilots Association—will fly in Saturday's air show.

Some of the aircraft that will fly in the show include F-15 Eagles, F-16 Falcons, F-4 Phantoms, A-7 Corsairs, Pitts bi-winged planes, Cessnas, and experimental aircraft.

Lead planes will take off from Stennis International Airport at 1:45 p.m. Fighter jets will begin their beach run at 2:30 p.m.

NASA Community Involvement Programs such as "Coast

Encounters" focus the national resources of the entire space agency on particular communities in order to encourage elementary, junior and senior high school students as well as junior college students to pursue careers in aerospace engineering.

The local Community Involvement Program is a joint effort between education, business and civic leaders from along the Gulf Coast and officials with the John C. Stennis Space Center.

KNS Theatre auditions for 'West Side Story'

The Kinetic Neo Skene Theatre Company will conduct auditions for 'West Side Story' on Saturday and Sunday, May 6 and 7 at 3 p.m.

Auditions will be in the Kelli's Steps, School of Dance, 701 West Howard Avenue, Biloxi.

Candidates must sing, dance and read and should bring sheet music for the accompanist or a tape for accompaniment.

There are roles for 25 males and 14 females. Four of the male roles are non-singing/dancing; all female roles sing and dance.

Directing duties will be handled by Kinard Fite, while Mary Evans Weaver will choreograph and Les Muncaster will be musical director.

Buzzy Sekul will serve as stage manager, Pamela Stuck as costume designer and Gerry Cowart will handle ticket sales.

For further information about auditions call 435-1738 and for ticket information call 374-9875.

Waveland slates kindergarten pre-registration

Waveland Elementary School will hold pre-registration for the 1989-90 school term on Monday, May 1 in the school library from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Students who reside within the city limits of Waveland and within the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District and plan to enter grades K-3 at Waveland Elementary next fall are eligible to pre-register.

A certified copy of the child's birth certificate, Social Security number and a certificate of compliance from the health department or family physician is requested at pre-registration and will be required before the child can actually attend classes.

Mississippi law mandates that children who are to enter kindergarten must attain the age of five on or before Sept. 1, 1989. Those who are to enter first grade must attain the age of six on or before Sept. 1, 1989.

Hearing and vision screening tests will be administered free of charge to each child who pre-registers as a service to the parent and the child.

All parents are urged to pre-register their eligible children. This will greatly assist parents and students in preparing for all classes.

Former State Treasurer Bill Cole, chairman of the committee responsible for the study, noted that "since the beginning, Mississippi has been searching for a tax system which provides sufficiency of revenues, and which, at the same time, guarantees efficiency and equity."

The road to a fair and equitable system of taxation is long and bumpy, but we must continue to strive to achieve the most efficient and equitable system possible.

Burglars

Rippo he had company on Tuesday.

"I was in the house fixing myself something to eat for lunch and I could tell by the way she was barking they were back."

"I grabbed my gun and out the door I went."

"I'd expected them to come back, but not with a vehicle there. It suggests dope that they were so brazen to come back knowing I was there."

He said he sighted the three suspects running toward a car parked at the side of the highway. When he fired warning shots, they left the car and ran in the opposite direction.

"I guess you could say I didn't catch anybody," Rippo said. "One kind of turned himself over to me."

Rippo said he had gone to their car, and a few minutes later, one of them came walking back to me.

"He was, well, whining, kind of like he was trying to con me into letting him go."

He said the young man first told him he was "a good boy, from a good family," and that he had been told the home was abandoned, so the metal was there for the taking.

"I said, 'Yeah, how many abandoned places do you see with dogs? Who's feeding that dog? Then he told me he had come there alone. I didn't believe what that young kid was trying to tell me,'" Rippo said.

Rippo walked the suspect at gunpoint down to Sunrise

Haven Trailer Park, because he had no one at his home to watch the man while he used the telephone to summon the sheriff's department.

He was still at Sunrise Haven, watching the young man with someone from the trailer park, when he spotted the other two "about 500 yards down the road toward Waveland."

'Burglars know the law works to their advantage. You're not supposed to shoot a burglar unless he threatens your life by initiating violence. He knows he has the option of initiating violence'—Rippo

They were standing by the shoulder of the road and Rippo said he tried to make his way down toward them, afraid they would catch a ride out of there, when a patrol car drove up and stopped.

While the deputy was arresting one of them, the other one ran back into the woods.

Rippo said he was glad to help; the burglary attempts have been a cause of stress to him and he feels it is particularly dangerous because he has a heart condition.

"It has cost me a good deal of money, cost me a lot of sleep and caused me a good deal of stress," he said.

"I just want to live my life and be left alone, but it doesn't work out that way...That's what everybody wants, but that's impossible."

Rippo feels he did something the general public should do when he helped the law enforcement officers, but he was taking a risk when he did it.

"The public tends to look away, and the police need help.

People need to tell them about suspicious goings-on and help each other. They should look after their neighbors," he said.

"Burglars know the law works to their advantage. You're not supposed to shoot a burglar unless he threatens your life by initiating violence. He knows he has the option of initiating violence."

"I fired over the heads of those characters, but if one of the bullets had ricocheted and hit one of them, I could have been sued."

"I had to take the chance."

Rippo said some people have tried to convince him that there are ways to get around the law, such as shooting a burglar in the process of entering and then dragging him into the house, but he does not believe in that.

He believes, instead, that the laws should be changed to keep them from being "slanted toward the benefit of the criminal."

"We need something to stir up the public and make them realize they're in danger too," Rippo stated Wednesday. "It could happen to them tomorrow just like it happened to me yesterday."

He believes in programs like Neighborhood Watch and explained that there are already a few in Pearllington.

Despite the fact that his home's isolated location would render a Neighborhood Watch less helpful to him, he urges anyone interested in starting one to contact the sheriff's department's Neighborhood Watch coordinator, Matt Karl, at 467-5101.

"That sort of thing takes time, and people don't want that. They don't want to get involved," Rippo said.

"I didn't want to get involved either. I got involved involuntarily."

"The burglars involved me."

"The only way to reduce crime is to help the police. You can't expect a limited police force working on a budget to do it all. It's impossible."

"The history and how things have changed was sort of a natural, so most of our effort has been toward determining where to place it," Thompson said.

NORDA to form base of new Navy 'corporate' lab

The Chief of Naval Research has announced plans to combine the respective ocean science research programs of three R&D organizations into a single corporate naval ocean sciences laboratory.

The three R&D organizations are the Naval Ocean Research and Development Activity (NORDA); the Institute for Naval Oceanography (INO); and the Naval Environmental Prediction Research Facility (NEPRF).

NORDA, located at the Stennis Space Center, Bay St. Louis, Mississippi, conducts a broad RDT&E program in ocean sciences with emphasis on ocean processes. INO, co-located with NORDA, focuses on research and development aimed at achieving ocean forecasting capability. The Naval Environmental Prediction Research Facility, in Monterey, Calif., conducts R&D directed at developing models for local and global prediction and analysis of the environment for fleet operation, as well as for determining the effect of the environment on naval weapons.

The decision to combine NORDA, NEPRF and INO into a single Navy corporate ocean sciences laboratory follows the recommendations of a recent NORDA Blue Ribbon Panel study, which determined a need to bring the separate components of atmospheric and oceanographic environmental research under one command. It is expected that the combination will result in more efficient coordination of research results and better 'coupling' of knowledge and models for Fleet use.

Implementation of the Blue Ribbon Panel recommendations and establishment of the new naval corporate ocean sciences laboratory is expected to take place in October 1989. No movement of personnel among the three concerned organizations is planned, and the establishment of the new laboratory is expected to take place without disruption of research activities.

Although the combination is not expected to result in cost reductions, "technical economies" will be achieved by the anticipated increased place of research resulting from the synergistic effect of the combined research programs.

The annual Craft Fair sponsored each year by the Hancock County Senior Citizens is accepting booth entries.

The fair will be May 6 from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. and May 7 from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. at the Valena C. Jones Center gymnasium and dining room.

This year, the fair is offering people who want to set up a booth a new option: a limited number of volunteers will be available to operate a booth for someone who has goods to sell, but can not be present.

Anyone who needs a volunteer or wishes to set up a booth should call the senior citizens center at 467-9292. Booth fee is $20 for both days or $10 for one day and is not refundable.

The center will be open Friday evening if people want to bring over booth items ahead of time.

Foods featured at the fair will include fish plates for $3 each and red beans and rice for $1. Take-outs will be available.

Also featured will be a dunking booth, live entertainment, face-painting, fortune teller, pony rides and other children's activities, and various types of arts and crafts.

UNO to present a 'Spotlight on Opera'

The University of New Orleans Opera Theater will present 'Spotlight on Opera,' scenes from eight operas, Friday, April 28 at 8:15 p.m. and Sunday, April 30 at 3:30 p.m. in the recital hall of the UNO Performing Arts Center. The program is free and open to the public.

The scenes, to be performed in English and Italian, are from the following operas: Mozart's 'Così fan tutte,' 'Magic Flute' and 'Don Giovanni,' Puccini's 'La Bohème,' 'Die Fledermaus' by Strauss; 'La Traviata' by Verdi; 'The Mikado' by Gilbert and Sullivan; and 'Help, Help, The Globolinks,' by Menotti.

Included in the cast of singers are John Aleman, Jeanna Benson, Steve Deckwa, Deanna Dugas, Natalya Henderson, Brigid Higgins, Cornelia Kelmell, Michelle Kemp, Phil Melancon, Jesse Nolan, Carla Pendergrass, Robert Styron, Alexander Todd, Pamela Wegener and Craig Yarbrough.

Raquel Cortina, director of Opera Theater and vocal activities at UNO will give a brief explanation at the beginning of each scene.

DANCE IN AMERICA

It's an evening of dance on Mississippi ETV Friday, April 29, as "Great Performances" features two "Dance in America" specials.

At 9, "A Night at the Joffrey" honors the late Robert Joffrey with three of the most popular works in his company's repertory: choreographer Sir Frederick Ashton's "Monotones II," "Love Songs," choreographed by William Forsythe; and Gerald Arpino's "Round of Angels."

"Baryshnikov Dances Balanchine" with American Ballet Theatre follows at 10. This encore presentation features the ballet superstar performing with his company in two contrasting Balanchine ballets: the classic "Apollo," with music by Stravinsky; and the modern "Who Cares?" with music by George Gershwin.

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire
Caire

'Smothered chicken'— a family favorite

Chicken fricassee, with its rich velvet brown sauce, is one of my favorite ways to cook chicken.

The "old time" chicken fricassee of our country's earlier days, was the ingenious cook's answer to making best use of an old hen, or should I say mature hen?—past her egg-producing days. So, the dowager chicken was slowly, slowly simmered, or "stewed down" to tenderness, in a thick sauce or gravy.

Nowadays, of course, many cooks make their fricassees with tender frying chickens, cutting the cooking time as well. But for a real, old-fashioned fricassee, I still prefer to use a hen for fullest flavor, cooking it slowly until the meat all but falls from the bones.

This dish is also known as "smothered chicken," for a cardinal rule of a fricassee is to cook it slowly (or smother) in a tightly covered pot, after browning the chicken pieces. The French prefer a "white fricassee" in a cream gravy. Most Southern cooks use the "brown fricassee," and a number of cooks prefer the "tomato or Creole Fricassee." Early cooks in the Carolinas made richer-than-rich white fricassee replete with egg yolks and cream, which gave the dish a golden rather than white tone. But this recipe is for the brown fricassee, as that's the one I like best! Here's:

CHICKEN FRICASSEE
(our family cook's recipe)
1 large chicken, cut in pieces
Flour for dredging chicken
2 medium onions, chopped

1 bell (green) pepper, chopped
1/2 cup oil
4 cups chicken stock or water
Bay leaf
Black pepper, cayenne, salt to your taste

Chopped fresh parsley for garnish.

Our cook, Mary, insisted upon chilling the chicken for an hour in the refrigerator first. Whether you do this or not, flour the chicken, and brown in the oil, then remove to a Dutch Oven or other thick pot with a close-fitting lid.

In the remaining oil (if more than two or three tablespoons, discard the excess oil) saute the onions and bell pepper slowly for five minutes, then add the stock or water, along with the bay leaf, pepper, cayenne and salt. Add this to the chicken pot, cover, and simmer slowly, slowly for an hour and a half or two hours, or until the chicken is tender.

Check and stir the sauce from time to time as it thickens, and gently change the pieces of chicken around so that all will cook evenly. Garnish with parsley. Serve with rice. (Four to six servings)

I often skip the two-pot routine in this recipe—just brown the chicken, remove it from the pot, saute the onions, etc., and return it to the pot. Just be sure that you cover the pot tightly and keep the flame low—unless you want a sort of boiled chicken!

Annual field day planned by area beef producers

The 1989 Beef Producers Day will be Saturday, April 29 at the South Mississippi Branch Experiment Station's White Sand Unit.

This year's field day is planned as an all-day family event combining business and pleasure.

Field day activities will begin at 9:30 a.m. and run through 4 p.m. at the research facility located nine miles west of Poplarville on State Route 26.

Tours of fields and pastures will be repeated several times throughout the day to show grazing and forage research. Following a sponsored lunch, guest speaker Lanas Smith of Purina Mills will recommend beef crossbreeding programs for the 1990s. There also will be commercial exhibits of equipment and products for beef production.

The Pearl River Cattlemen's Association has a wide range of activities for all ages that will run concurrently throughout the day.

Included are contests for chicken roping, weight guessing, beef and horse judging (for 4-H, FFA, and adult teams and individuals) and skeet shooting. A country store will feature crafts of all kinds along with a bake sale.

This year's field day is co-sponsored by the Mississippi Agricultural and Forestry Experiment Station, the MAFES Southern Branch, and the Pearl River Cattlemen's Association in cooperation with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service and the Mississippi Cattlemen's Association. For additional information contact Lee Taylor, county agent, 467-5456.

GOOD FOOD BUYS

Comparison shop when buying cereals

Wheat, corn and rice provide lots of variety in cereal and other necessary foods. In the average grocery store you can find nearly 100 different—big, little and middle-sized—packages on cereal counters, not including the various types of rice displayed elsewhere.

Different size packages and brands of the same cereals account for more than half the large number, but there are still numerous flavor, texture and ingredient variations of wheat, corn and rice.

Cost varies depending on the type of cereal and other ingredients added to it. Preparation time ranges from the few seconds needed to empty cereal from box to bowl, to several minutes for cereals you cook and eat.

Food values vary even more than prices, as you'll see if you take the time to read labels and don't get lost in the confusion. Cereal companies were leaders in nutrition labeling.

Now, most cereal labels carry two types of nutrition lists: nutrients in a specified serving of cereal alone, and nutrients in a serving of cereal plus 1/2 cup milk.

These lists include grams of protein, carbohydrates and fat; number of calories per serving; and percentages of recommended daily allowances of from 5 to 11 vitamins and minerals.

One cereal varies very little over another in protein content, usually providing (with 1/2 cup milk) 6 to 10 percent of a healthy adult's recommended allowance.

Calories per serving are about the same for all unsweetened cereals (110 for cereal alone, or 190 for cereal plus 1/2 cup milk).

In their simplest forms, whole grain or enriched cereals are inexpensive sources of carbohydrates, iron, thiamine, riboflavin and niacin. Many cereals are further fortified with the usual cereal nutrients, especially iron.

Some labels indicate the presence of vitamin C in addition to the usual cereal nutrients. Others indicate sufficient fortification to provide, in a serving, full daily allowances for adults of all minerals and vitamins for which recommendations have been established.

In some cases this extent of fortification may be desirable, but it is not necessary in a balanced diet for a healthy individual.

Although it's not easy to determine size of servings of the many different cereals, one-ounce dry-weight is the amount usually used in estimating food values of single servings.

In terms of measurements, this is likely to be 3/4 cup of cooked cereals, except for the mix-and-eat hot cereals.

Label instructions on boxes of mix-and-eat cereals suggest use of 1/2 cup of water with each pre-measured packet, which would result in smaller servings from an ounce of pre-cooked cereal than would be provided by an ounce of uncooked cereal.

Measurement for an ounce of ready-to-serve dry cereals, as indicated by label statements, varies from 1/4 cup for such concentrates as wheat germ to 2 cups of puffed rice. Bran measures about 2/3 cup per ounce, and cornflakes 1-1/4 cups.

Of the ready-to-eat cereals, cornflakes were the earlier ones developed. In large boxes, cornflakes are also the least expensive of all ready-to-eat cereals. However, individual packaging doubles their cost.

Among the 9- to 18-ounce boxes of cereals, cost per ounce is naturally lowest for the largest box of the same brand and name.

Price is likely to run higher for those that are labeled with special nutritional claims, whether the sales pitch is for natural ingredients (inferring no additives—or for high fortified products.

Price is also likely to be relatively high for cereals with sugar frosting or special flavors.

Ladner to address cancer survivors

Hancock County cancer survivors, friends and families will join the celebration of National Cancer Survivors' Day on Sunday, April 30. The day is set aside to commemorate personal victories over cancer, as well as positive advancements in cancer research.

Sponsored by the American Cancer Society, Cancer Survivors' Day is the second annual celebration of cancer survival on a national scale. Hancock County events are being organized by Hancock Medical Center.

The highlight of the day in Hancock County will be a Cancer Survivors' Reception featuring cancer overcomers offering personal testimonies and words of encouragement.

The reception will be from 2:30 to 4 p.m. on Sunday, April 30. Featured speaker will be Alice Ladner, member services assistant for Coast Electric Power Company and cancer overcomer in Hancock County.

Cancer survivors, their loved ones, Cancer Society supporters and the medical community are invited to attend this celebration of life.

For more information about Cancer Survivors' Day, contact Hancock Medical Center at 467-0981 ext. 2225.

TIMBERLINE

By Mark Jamieson
County Forester

Now is the time to fertilize trees

A regular fertilization program is one of the best things you can do for your shade tree and now is a good time to apply fertilizer.

Not only will a tree look better with proper feeding, but better health means longer life. Increasing the tree's vigor helps it resist attacks from insects and disease.

Foresters generally agree that fertilization should not be applied to a transplanted tree's soil during the first year after transplanting. However, a water soluble fertilizer such as that used for house plants could be sprayed on the foliage to boost growth.

For young trees, removing grass and other living vegetation from the immediate area and keeping the area mulched also increases growth.

In a tree fertilization program, trees normally require a higher ratio of nitrogen than of phosphorus or potassium (the three basic mineral elements in fertilizer mixes). A 3-1-1 ratio of nitrogen-phosphorus-potassium, such as 15-5-5 or 12-4-4, is desirable.

The amount of fertilizer to use for a tree depends on its size. Research has shown that about three pounds of actual nitrogen per 1,000 square feet of root area is needed to maintain maximum tree health.

If using a 15-5-5 formula fertilizer, 20 pounds of fertilizer would be needed per 1,000 square feet of root area (6.67 pounds of 15 percent nitrogen is necessary to make one pound of 100 percent nitrogen; therefore, 20 pounds is needed to equal three pounds of actual nitrogen).

There are several methods used for applying fertilizer, but two are particularly useful to the homeowner. The one to use will depend on your soil type. In sandy or porous soil, the broadcast method of application can be used successfully.

The fertilizer is broadcast onto the ground in a circular area beginning two to four feet (depending on the size of the tree) from the trunk and extending beyond the outer limits of the crown. The feeder roots are in this area and are within 12 to 18 inches of the ground surface.

In hard, clay-type soils, or compacted soils, the punch-hole method is more appropriate. Holes 12 to 18 inches deep and 1 to 1½ inches in diameter are made at two-foot intervals within the root zone.

Punch bars, soil augers, or electric drills with special auger attachments can be used to punch the holes. A portion of fertilizer is then placed in each hole. This method improves aeration for the tree's root system as well as providing fertilization.

The holes are then filled with soil. A sand or gravel backfill would be even better, to help maintain the improved aeration.

Flea Market offers crafts

It is time once again to prepare for the semi-annual Canton Flea Market located on the historic square in Canton, Miss.

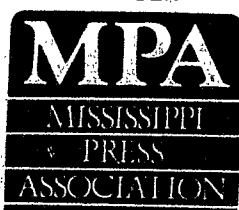

The date for the show is set for May 11. "We are expecting even bigger crowds than before to attend this spring market," said chairman Becky Chandler. "We strive to have a large variety of the finest arts and crafts for the spectators to enjoy with over 30 different categories."

All exhibitors in the Canton Flea Market have been judged and selected by members of the Canton Flea Market Committee.

A trip to the Canton Flea Market, which is held on the second Thursday in May and October, promises a fun-filled day of shopping, souvenirs, arts, crafts, antiques, food concessions, people-watching, and a visit to a historical community which is growing and changing with its redevelopment.

Shuttle service is provided from the various parking areas to the Canton Flea Market.

Time Out

By Dena Bisnette

Soccer continues to be big news, with eight Bay Area Youth Soccer teams going to state tournaments. The sport has caught on quite well down here with kids of all ages.

Not too long ago, when I was a kid, nobody played soccer. None of the schools had soccer teams and it wasn't even played that often in intramurals. I don't remember much professional soccer on television, but then we didn't have all-sports networks yet, either.

I wonder why folks waited so long to get into something that is so good! In the past decade, it has helped countless children develop coordination, learn teamwork and sportsmanship, and fulfill that wish every kid voices at one time or another, that desire for "something to do."

Good luck to all the BAYS players in Jackson next month.

Waveland Little League opens its 1989 season Saturday with a parade at 9 a.m. and opening ceremonies at Elwood Bourgeois Field at 9:30. Mayor John Longo Jr. will throw the first pitch.

The games start immediately after the ceremony and continue all day. Food and drinks will be available at the ballfield.

Spring is the time when you hear about all the sports scholarships being signed. Congratulations to one local recipient who has signed with Pearl River Community College, Sherwin Ladner. Ladner is a 6-2, 160-pound guard and forward who was an all-district player in his last three seasons for the Hancock North Central Hawks.

Speaking of Pearl River Community College, we have a few local players on the 1989 softball team there. They include Dawn Hall of Pearlington and Natalie Ladner of Pass Christian. Good luck, ladies, and we hope to be hearing more about you.

The Hancock County Riding Club is sponsoring its first horse show of the season Saturday at Kenny Ray Ladner's arena in Lakeshore.

The event begins at 2 p.m. and admission is free. Negative Coggins is required for participation.

If you've been following the University of Southern Mississippi Golden Eagles in baseball, you may have a chance to catch a couple of games this week.

The Eagles start off Friday with a home game against William Carey at 6:30 p.m., then move to Carey for a Saturday game at 7 p.m. and back to USM to play at 2 p.m. Sunday.

There are also a couple of weeknight games coming up, one at home, 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, against University of South Alabama; and an away game at 6:30 p.m. Thursday at University of New Orleans.

Don't forget! The Sea Coast Echo can run sports and sports-related items for you in Time Out. To submit items either bring them by our office by Tuesday, preferably before noon, or call Dena Bisnette at 467-5474. You're also welcome to mail them in, but be sure you send them early enough that they'll arrive here by Tuesday.

SSC Invitational Golf Tournament features Heisman winner Blanchard

The St. Stanislaus Alumni Association will sponsor an invitational golf tournament for alumni and friends on Friday, April 28.

The tournament will be played on the Cardinal Course at the Diamondhead Country Club with a "shotgun start" at 9 a.m. An award ceremony will take place at 1:30 p.m.

Some 135 golfers will participate in this year's event. Tournament chairman is Dan Nelson, assisted by Brother Aquin Gauthier.

Doc Blanchard, a 1942 graduate of St. Stanislaus, will be special guest for the tournament. During his four years at St. Stanislaus he starred on the football field and was named to the All-Gulf Coast Football Team.

He gained fame in football at the United States Military Academy as a three-time All-American and winner of the prestigious Heisman Trophy.

He served for 25 years as a pilot in the United States Air Force, and retired in 1971 with the rank of colonel. He and his wife Jody reside in San Antonio, Texas.

Pairings for the tournament are as follows:

Team 1: Doc Blanchard, Ben Kleinpeter, Buddy Laughlin,

Sellers Meric and Jim Smith. Team 2: Quinton Couevas, Wilton Autin, Phillip Fasullo, J. T. Simon and Robert Mayer.

Team 3: Charles Gaudin, Pete Gaudin, Harriman Morgan, Weldon Frommeyer and Tommy Kidd.

Tigers advance to 3-3, dropping Pirates 15-9

The Bay High Tigers moved up to three and three in their division last week by defeating Pass Christian 15-9.

The Tigers pounced in the second inning, scoring seven runs on five hits and three bases on balls.

The first Tiger to lead off was Darrell Murphy, who got a single, followed by Charlie Mitchell with another single.

Kyle LaFontaine then contributed a base on balls to load the bases. Chris Heaps drew a base on balls to walk in a run.

Thomas Brinks hit into a felder's choice to force Mitchell out on third. Scott Rogers followed up by hitting a solid hit to right field, scoring three runs. Scott Barnes then hit a single to left to score Rogers from third, then David Weems hit a single to score Barnes and scored himself when the shortstop made an error on a throw home.

In the top of the third, the Pass Christian Pirates scored two runs on two hits. In the bottom of the third, Bay High picked up four runs on four hits, helped along by Brinks on a two-bagger, Barnes with a

In the top of the fourth, the Pirates picked up three unanswered runs when the Tigers made a couple of costly errors.

However, Bay High picked up three more runs in the bottom of the fourth, on walks to Heaps and Calvin Thigpen, singles by Barnes and Weems and a double by Murphy.

Pass Christian picked up another run to make the score 14-5 in the Tigers' favor during Bay Area Youth Soccer sent 15 teams to district playoffs for the soccer year-end competition held the weekends of Apr. 8, 9 and 15 and 16.

Of the 15 teams participating, eight won either first or second place in the district competition and earned the right to represent the district in state competition.

In Under-8, both BAYS teams won. The Sweepers, coached by Steve Carver, won the division title and will be the number one team in the age group to go to the state playoffs.

The BAYS Raiders, sponsored by Rick's Trophies, won second place in the District IV soccer tournament held in Bay St. Louis.

The tournament featured the top two teams in each of the leagues from the Gulf Coast to compete in a grueling double elimination contest.

The two BAYS teams in Under-8 won out over the other teams and earned the right to compete in the State Recreation tournament to be held in Clinton on May 13 and 14.

The Raiders' only loss in the tournament was to the district champions, the Sweepers.

Coach Christine Ross of the Raiders commented, "The team has come a long way and is continually getting better. It's great that two BAYS teams in the same age group get to compete in the state tournament."

Assistant Coach Art Rieben added, "The team has demonstrated their ability to win, and watching them is exciting."

In Under-12 Boys competition, the BAYS Hurricane team, coached by Ronnie LaFontaine, will be one of the two teams representing the district in the state playoffs.

Coach Leo Laurent's Burger King team will also compete in the state games in the premiere division.

In Under-14 Boys, the Excalibur team, coached by Jerry Ross, won four games and lost one game, to earn the number two spot as district runner-up in the Under 14 Boys division. Excalibur's only loss was to the tournament champion team from Gulfport.

In district, Excalibur was able to play both a strong defense and offensive series of games with only three goals against the Excalibur team and 18 goals for them.

Coach Ross commented, "Our defense forms the backbone of our team. With our midfield, they maintain good control and allowing our forwards to penetrate and to score. This combination of team work makes us a very offensive team."

Assistant Coach Jimmy Harvill said, "Our team put together some excellent plays both offense and defense." Excalibur is sponsored by Take-One Video and is looking forward to the state tournament.

In Under-16 Boys competition, coach Chip Merigan's team was the district winner. They will be the number one team representing the district

Ed Nelson golf benefit set for Diamondhead Academy

The Second Annual Ed Nelson Celebrity Golf Tournament will be Saturday, April 29 at the Diamondhead Country Club.

"The day-long event is packed full of activities and all proceeds will again benefit the Diamondhead Academy," said Diane Bennett, chairman.

The tournament was developed last year by Ed Nelson, well known stage and screen star. Nelson is best known for his starring role in 'Peyton Place,' and for recent roles in 'Dynasty,' 'Hotel,' 'Cagney and Lacey,' and 'J. J. Starbuck.'

"Nelson is again bringing celebrities from Hollywood to play with local golfers," stated Bennett.

A Hollywood or local celebrity golfer will be placed with each four-man team. New to the tournament this year is Ed Marinaro, formerly of 'Hill Street Blues.'

The day will begin with participating golfers meeting celebrities for brunch at the Diamondhead Country Club before the 12:30 shotgun start.

After a day of golf, the celebrities will entertain the local golfers at a sumptuous dinner show at the club with Nelson serving as guest of honor emcee.

The dinner menu features a mixed green salad with hearts of palm and fresh dill cream dressing, a choice of two entrees: Beouf d'Orleans or Filet of Snapper Kamahameha, linguini with basil butter sauce, medley of fresh seasonal vegetables with herbs, and chocolate chocolate torte with raspberry sauce and chantilly cream.

The evening will also include a cocktail hour beginning at 6:30 p.m., the awarding of prizes to winning teams and a raffle.

Golf Prizes include full sets of irons, full sets of woods, and Taylor metal woods. Other golf prizes feature PGA and Hotz golf bags, sand wedges, golf balls and umbrellas. Air fare for two to Hawaii, courtesy of Delta Airlines will be awarded for a hole-in-one.

Other prizes will be given for a long-drive contest, closest to the hole on all par 3's, and for long putt of the day. Optional "in the circle contest" will be held on all par 3's, and multi-golfers can be purchased prior to tee-off.

Other items offered are a week at a Destin condominium, airline tickets for two to anywhere in the continental United States, courtesy of American Airlines, a catered moon-light champagne cruise for six, and other luxurious items.

The fee is $100 per person for Local instructor, students capture horse trials awards

BY DENA BISNETTE
Local riding teacher Auriol Hessemer and her students brought back several ribbons and trophies from the weekend's Foxview Horse

Trials and Dressage Show in Abita Springs, La. Abigail, owned by Pamela Smith Moore of Waveland and ridden by Hessemer, took a first place and an overall award.

The judges chose Abigail as first place in the beginner horse division after she scored clean rounds in both cross-country and stadium jumping. She also took home the award for the best horse trials score in the entire competition.

A student rider, Richard Mestayer of Bay St. Louis, rode his Ramfis to a second place in the beginner combined test, which includes dressage and jumping.

Finishing in third was one of his fellow students, Brooke Hartwell of Pass Christian, up on Royal.

Both had clean jumping rounds.

On the second day of competition Sunday, Hessemer rode her advanced dressage horse, Scimitar, to place second in both Prix St. Georges and Intermediate dressage classes.

Several of her students from Hattiesburg and Louisiana also won ribbons at the Foxview trials.

The next competition for the group, which trains at Theriot's Stables in Pass Christian, will be May 6 at the Emerald Fox Horse Trails in New Orleans.

BWYC Juniors elect officers

The Bay-Waveland Junior Yacht Club recently elected its flag officers and board members to start the coming summer.

Wayne Murphy was elected commodore; Linn Montjoy, vice-commodore; Davis Weems, rear-commodore; Konnie Mer-rigan, treasurer; and Catherine Ohman, secretary.

The new board members are Gilly Chamberlain, Jeanne Williams, Mallory Mestayer, Lee Seal and Mark Carter.

The junior members sponsored a dance at the yacht club April 8.

Officers and board members have discussed the possibility having a free one-day sailing clinic and exchanges with other yacht clubs. They are looking forward to summer and are anticipating a great sailing and social season.

Curry inducted into DSU Sports Hall of Fame

The Delta State Alumni Association recently installed Bay St. Louis native Walden Curry into its Sports Hall of Fame.

Curry is a five-time national champion track star who amassed a series of honors at Delta State during the early 1970's. He was the school's first All-American in Track and Field.

From 1970-74, Curry won five National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics High jump titles, including three indoor crowns, in 1972-74 and two outdoor crowns in 1972-73.

He was named NAIA All-American five times and was the first Mississippian to high jump seven feet.

Curry is a 1970 graduate of Bay Senior High School, where he was coached by J. E. Loiacano.

The New Orleans resident still holds two DSU records, 7-feet, 3/4-inch in the high jump

St. Stanislaus track team off to impressive start

With five track meets under their belt, the St. Stanislaus track team has shown steady improvement in getting ready for the District 4A track meet to be held Friday, April 28.

Most impressive performers have been Brian Brooks in the mile, 2 mile, and 800 meter run, and Craig Sweeney in the javelin, discus and 800 meter run.

Shannon Garrett has also looked strong in the 100 m, 200 m, and 400 and 800 meter anchor in the relay teams.

SSC finished second to Ocean Springs in an eight-team field in the Ocean Springs Invitational meet held April 6.

Brooks and Garrett won their events, while Jeff Battle placed second in the discus.

Johnny Labruzzo placed second in the pole vault and 400 meter relay.

Ken Booker placed second in the 800 meter relay and fourth in the 110 meter high hurdles.

"As a team we are starting to come together. People are filling in some needed spots. Where we originally thought we had little depth, our athletes are now showing the steady improvement necessary for us to be district contenders," commented assistant Coach Andy Kivlan.

The district preliminaries will begin next Wednesday at St. Martin, with the finals being held next Friday afternoon at St. Martin.

brunch, golf (plus carts and greens fees for non-club members), the celebrity show and spectacular dinner.

Tickets are also available for the dinner and show for $50 per person.

in state.
In girls competition, the Under-10 Girls team, coached by Bernard Tusa, won the district title. This girls team has been very strong all year and should give a good showing at state.

The under-12 Girls team, coached by Toni Doni, won in the district competition and will be a state contender as well as the Under-16 Girls team from the BAYS, coached by Christine Polson.

In all, a total of eight teams from the BAYS Soccer League will be representing BAYS and District IV in the state tournament. Congratulations to all of the BAYS district winners on a fine showing. The sheer number of teams placing in District tournament indicates how strong the BAYS Soccer program is and is a tribute to the community.

It has been my pleasure to write about the BAYS Soccer activities this soccer year, but this article would not be complete without mentioning the real winners in BAYS Soccer.

I am speaking of the youths in BAYS Soccer, both boys and girls of all ages. One of the greatest joys I get as a coach, referee and league official is to see these youths progress throughout the year and to now that every child is a better player at the end of the year than he or she was at the beginning.

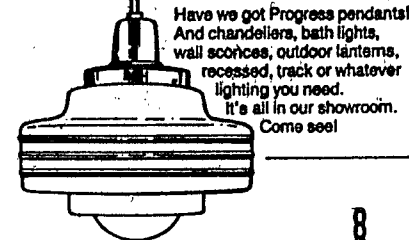

It is heart-warming to see a child who has never played before at the beginning of the season, who cannot control or kick the ball properly, come away at the end of the season demonstrating skill at ball control, coordination, and team spirit.

Each may not be the best player in the world, but they are all better players, no matter what the team record, thanks to the hard work and dedication of a few individuals—the coaches, referees, sponsors and adults that give of their time to work with these young people—the future of our community.

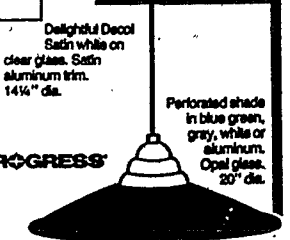

Their efforts, a child's smile and the fun in the game make it all worthwhile.

"Over all, both squad gave a good effort throughout the meet," Coach Cleveland Williams said, "even though we had a few disappointing situations that occurred and stopped the young ladies from securing the title." He said the team will have to work harder to prepare for the South State meet because the level of competition will be higher. However, Williams is expecting good performances out of several team members. "Mike Sharp will be a tough competitor in the high jump but the competitiveness is always tough in this division," the coach said. "I must say he's a hard-working young man who shows a lot of potential for progress, and he has jumped 6'4" twice this year."

"Shasta Williams, who place fourth in the state 3—A classification last year, has worked on weights, which has given her more strength in her jumping ability. She is 5'2".

Others he expects to do well in their events are Tunishia McKay, Latashia Davis, Lawankia Williams, Laurel Rupp, Deborah Deloach, Anthony Marshall and Willie Moody.

He added that the group had all advanced to South State before and "they realize what each must do to enhance their performances."

STATEMENT OF NONDISCRIMINATION

COAST ELECTRIC POWER ASSOCIATION

has filed with the Federal Government a Compliance Assurance

Statement pursuant to the Federal Equal Employment Opportunity Act of 1972, as amended, and all requirements of the rules and regulations of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, which require that no person in the United States shall, on the ground of race, color, or national origin, or solely because of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be otherwise subjected to discrimination in the conduct of its program or the operation of its facilities. Under this Assurance, this organization is committed not to discriminate against any person on the ground of race, color, or national origin, solely because of sex, or on the basis of age, in its policies and practices relating to employment, or in its policies and practices relating to treatment of beneficiaries and participants including employment, rates, conditions, and extension of service, admission or access to or use of any of its facilities, attendance at and participation in any meetings of beneficiaries and participants or the exercise of any rights of such beneficiaries and participants in the conduct of the operations of this organization. The person in this organization responsible for coordinating the nondiscrimination compliance efforts of this organization is GEORGE SULLIVAN.

Any individual, or any specific class of individuals, who feels subjected by this organization to discrimination prohibited by Title VI of the Civil Rights Act, by Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act, by the Age Discrimination Act or by the rules and regulations of the U.S. Department of Agriculture may personally or through a representative, file with the Office of the Secretary, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250; the Office of the Administrator, Rural Electrification Administration, Washington, D.C. 20250; the Office of Advocacy and Enterprise, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250; or this organization, or by a written complaint. Such complaint must be filed not later than 180 days after the alleged discrimination, or by such later date as the Secretary of Agriculture or the Administrator of the Rural Electrification Administration extends the time for filing. Identity of complainant will be kept confidential except to the extent necessary to carry out the purposes of the rules and regulations of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. 4-27-89

Gusty wind, waves rock Diamondhead Boaters on trip to Ship Island

Special to the Echo
By Bud and Liz Barnes
The weather was only partially cooperative for the April 8 Boaters' outing which the nautical committee had planned as a round trip to Ship Island.

Skies were clear and sunny and the temperatures mild, but the wind was a bear. Winds of 15 knots gusting to 20 produced waves of 4-6 feet on the Mississippi Sound, and made low-speed maneuvering tedious—whether on the Sound, the Bay or Jourdan River, or Rotten Bayou.

Some 18 boats participated for a total crew and passenger count of 120 folks; but only six hardy captain's boats braved the Sound to have lunch in Ship Island Harbor as originally planned.

The remainder cruised the Bay and River and had lunch either in the shallows of the upper Rotten Bayou or on the beach of the Jourdan opposite McLeod Park (those who could pass under the Hwy. 603 bridge).

Despite the splintering of the fleet it is generally acknowledged that most folks had a most enjoyable day. The Sound did exact its toll. There were a few cases of nausea and a few bruises reported, maybe/ maybe-not abetted by the good "spirits" observed here and there.

Participating boats and their captains were Barcavela, C. Stout; Beachcomber, G. McCook; Chucky Pu, C. Howard; Dago Red, H. Seuvac; Eagle 1, D. Settle; KayBee, K. Boyd; Lazy Bones, H. Devine; Lazy Liz, B. Barnes.

And, Margie's Mink, T. Miller; Marilyn J. B. Jacobs; M & M. Seaton; Nancy J. N. Schuback; Passport, B. Malcomb; Rainbow's End, S. Claggett; Sea Lark, R. Keel; Sea World, J. Roberson; Traveler, J. Wilson; and Yankee Rebel, D. Marshall.

Flagship was Eagle 1 with Boaters Association Commodore Jack Willson aboard. Nina Cotton and her nautical committee are working hard in planning fun functions for this club year. The calendar includes the following events: May 6, Annual Kentucky Derby Party; June 3, Jambalaya Cookout; July 15, Mobile Dog Races; August, Water Games and BBQ Chicken; Sept. 16, Octoberfest Party; Oct. 7, Halloween Party; November, Undecided; Dec. 9, Christmas Boat

Parade
Jan. 10, Coronation Ball
Feb. 10, Mardi Gras Ball
The Annual Kentucky Derby Party will take place at our own "Churchill Downs," the home of Berlon and Nell Dennis. Pick your favorite horse for an afternoon of fun and mint juleps. Look for the flyer to be sent you soon.

the top of the fifth. In the bottom of the fifth, the younger Tigers saw some action with Jamie Kingston, LaFontaine's relief at second base, leading off with a single.

Will Seymour pitched the first five innings, giving up only five hits and six runs. Brinks came in as pitcher at the top of the sixth to close out the game.

This week, the Tigers dropped a close game, 7-6, to Stone County. Several errors on the part of the young Tigers, despite the improvement they have shown in the past several weeks, were costly to Bay High.

Scoring started in the bottom of the first, with hits by Thigpen, Power and Murphy. Weems and Heaps added another run each in the bottom of the second. Brinks hit a single in the sixth and Thigpen drew a walk with two outs.

Seymour, who relieved Mitchell as pitcher, took the loss with four strike-outs.

Final stats showed Stone with seven runs on six hits and Bay with six runs on seven hits.

"Eagle Lady"

Hitting the road to keep raptors in air

"THE EAGLE LADY" Doris Mager, in Waveland last week, a crested caracara, takes a break from a cross-country trip on which she is presenting programs to educate the public about birds of prey. On her way to speak in New Orleans, she visited the bald eagle release project being conducted on DuPont-owned property in Delisle. (Echo staff photo by D.C. Harvill) life-forms inside the cage from which they are being released near the north shore of the bay.

BY D.C. HARVILL
If birds of a feather flock together—had she feathers—Doris Mager would be a raptor. As she travels around the country, Mager, president and founder of Save Our American Raptors (SOAR), keeps the company of a golden eagle, a mature and an immature bald eagle, a great horned owl and a crested caracara, the national bird of Mexico.

Raptors are birds of prey, meat eaters including eagles, hawks, owls, falcons and vultures.

Mager stopped on the Coast last week to visit the eagle release project being conducted on DuPont-owned property adjacent to the company's titanium-dioxide plant in Delisle.

In 1983, at 57, Mager started SOAR after spending 19 years working for the Florida Audubon Society caring for injured and ill birds.

She was managing the Audubon's store in Maitland, Florida when, in 1963, a seemingly simple event changed the course of her life; leading her to do "crazy" things on behalf of raptors and ultimately to the creation of SOAR.

"Someone brought in a big box and said it contained a dangerous bird. Several of us opened it and an injured red-tailed hawk came up on its back with its claws flying. Everyone got away from the box, except me—I had an almost immediate love affair with birds of prey," Mager said.

Though she had neither experience with raptors, nor veterinary assistance, she assumed care of the hawk.

"I just took the bird home and used common sense. The wound eventually healed and I released him. I tell kids today to just use common sense—it goes a long way," she said.

After that first hawk, Mager, and her late husband, cared for countless birds of prey. She eventually became known as "the Eagle Lady."

In 1979, when the Audubon Society needed money for aviaries (large bird cages) to house injured raptors, Mager raised the necessary funds by playing eagle-for-a-week, perched in an abandoned eagle nest.

"I said I'd done everything with eagles except stay in an eagle nest and they took me seriously," she said.

After the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, the agency charged with protection of endangered species, hesitantly granted permission for the stunt, Mager ascended a tall tree to the huge mass of sticks and debris that she was to inhabit for seven days and six nights.

For the 200th anniversary of the bald eagle being designated the U.S. national bird, Mager walked around Florida.

In 1983, realizing that rehabilitation of injured birds was merely "treating the symptom and not the disease," Mager, with funding from Exxon, founded SOAR and embarked on a national campaign to educate the public about birds of prey.

"After people have had the opportunity to see these birds in person, in a school or department store, maybe they will be less likely to shoot them when they see them in the wild," she said.

"After people have had the opportunity to see these birds in person, in a school or department store, maybe they will be less likely to shoot them when they see them in the wild." —Mager said. All the birds Mager uses in her programs can no longer fend for themselves in the wild because of injuries or illness.

According to the group's literature, "tens of thousands of people have been reached" by their programs conducted in schools, department stores and for various organizations across the nation.

In addition to assistance from Exxon, SOAR is supported by memberships, T-shirt sales and donations.

When Mager conducts programs in schools, she accepts $1 donations from students in return for buttons with pictures of raptors done for the organization by a Disney artist.

Accepting the money in the form of donations helps instill the habit of giving, whether to SOAR or other charitable causes, Mager said.

In her current cross-country trip, Mager and her feathered friends are retracing the route of an 85-day bicycle trip she made in 1987 to raise money for SOAR.

"Two years ago, when I biked through this area, someone gave me a Waveland pin. I have it with me now," she said, over lunch at a Waveland restaurant.

She plans to bike cross-country again when she is 65.

Mager recently returned from Alaska, where she assisted with animal victims of the Exxon oil spill.

"I went to Alaska to show my support for the animals and for Exxon, because they are the only oil company I know of that has shown support for the environment and for my programs for the past 16 years," she said.

Mager said the spill is a great tragedy and she thinks stronger regulatory legislation and greater caution by oil companies will result from it.

"It is a terrible thing. I just hope some good will come out of it," she said.

SPREAD-EAGLE—Flexing its powerful wings, a golden eagle dwarfs Doris Mager at DuPont last week. Mager, uses the impressive fowl in her educational programs.

GCRL offering biology research scholarships

Two college students will be given a unique research opportunity this summer at the Gulf Coast Research Laboratory in Ocean Springs through special funding from the National Science Foundation.

Dr. Stuart Poss, curator of the GCRL ichthyological research collection and systematic zoology section head, said that the students will be involved in a variety of research components related to the systematic biology of fishes including specimen preparation, field collection, specimen curation, and data collection and analysis.

Recipients will be given a $2,400 stipend, room and board and a small travel allowance to support their 13-week internships.

This is the second summer GCRL has been able to offer these NSF internships. Last year's recipients were Alan Newman of Hendrix College in Conway, Ark. and Rhonda Newman of Southeast Missouri State University, Cape Girardeau.

Any full-time undergraduate student enrolled at a U.S. educational institution will be considered based on academic record and future promise. In an effort to increase participation in scientific career fields among under-represented groups, one of the two positions will be filled by a minority, handicapped or female applicant, and students in these categories are strongly encouraged to apply.

Applicants must have taken one introductory-level biology course and at least two upper-level courses in biological or physical science. Some computer experience is desired.

Deadline for application is May 15. Interested persons may contact Dr. Poss at 372-4255 for additional information.

Guidance groups set up for junior high students

Now through May 22, the sixth, seventh and eighth graders at Bay Junior High will participate in weekly group guidance programs dealing with teenage concerns and problems.

Some concerns the programs will cover include self-esteem and feelings, coping skills, interpersonal relationships, problem-solving, decision-making, drugs, suicide and abuse.

The programs will be presented in the classroom setting and will be sponsored by local adolescent care personnel.

The sixth grade sessions are called the Teen Life Program and meet each Friday. They are sponsored by Gulf Oaks Hospital and Clinic, with Karen Hector directing.

Seventh graders are participating in the 3D Fridays Teen Program, with the D's standing for Discoveries, Decisions and Directions. Sand Hill Hospital is the sponsor and Mrs. Leslie Shelton is director.

The eighth grade program is called Making Choices and is sponsored by Northshore Hospital. The director is Elaine Colbert.

The planning and coordination for the programs was a joint effort of the team teaching units at the junior high and the hospital representatives directing each program.

Chapter one meeting set

A public, planning meeting for Hancock County School's 1989-90 Chapter One Program will be 5 p.m. today in the district's central office conference room at Stennis Field.

Topics to be covered will include: evaluations of the previous year, finances, spaces available, areas of concentration, overview of the current program and its effectiveness. All interested parties are encouraged to attend.

After a stroke,
we'll help
put your world back together.

Suddenly, you feel your world has fallen apart.

But it hasn't, not really. There is help, and it's closer than you think. As close as Slidell Memorial.

Healing after stroke can be lengthy, lonely, and frustrating.

But at our Rehabilitation Unit, recovery from stroke, surgery, or serious injury is more comprehensive and faster than ever before.

Physicians, rehab specialists, therapists, and nurses staff the unit. Patients and therapy team members work one on one to shape and quicken recovery on an individual basis. Secondary therapy sessions keep patients active, not lonely or frustrated.

Occupational, physical, speech, and other, more specialized therapies work better at the Rehabilitation Unit. Because they're provided daily, not weekly.

The Rehabilitation Unit is a complete therapy unit where recovering patients reassemble their lives as they learn to live again. Our therapy team will tell you that's all that counts.

President Bush to address MSU commencement exercises

Official confirmation having been received from the White House this week, Mississippi State University is busy making plans for the May 13 commencement address by President George Bush.

Because of the anticipated audience, the 3 p.m. program will be held at the football stadium, Scott Field. Humphrey Coliseum has been the traditional commencement site since it opened in 1976.

MSU president and Mrs. Donald Zacharias will be hosts for a reception for students and their families from 10-11:30 a.m. in the Colvard Union Ballroom.

"This commencement will certainly be remembered in the history of both the state and the university," said Provost John Darling. "It is a splendid occasion when a university attracts a speaker of the importance and stature of the president of the United States."

Darling said even though the program is scheduled for Scott Field, Humphrey Coliseum will be the alternate location in case of bad weather. For that reason, each graduating student will receive three coliseum passes for immediate family members.

Additional coliseum passes for students may be available once those reserved for faculty and for invited dignitaries, federal and state officials, and other special guests have been allocated, Darling said.

The university holds only one commencement each year, awarding diplomas to graduates from the past year's summer term and fall semester and the spring semester of the current year.

About 2,700 students will be eligible to receive degrees this year, Darling said.

Because of necessary security precautions, Darling said graduates and all others attending commencement should make plans to arrive at Scott Field at least an hour before the program begins. The program itself will be relatively brief.

"Because the president is our speaker, we will forego some parts of the traditional program," he said.

For additional information on the commencement program, telephone the Office of the Registrar, 325-2662.

HMC to begin May childbirth classes

Hancock Medical Center's Prepared Childbirth Class for the month of May will begin on Monday, May 1.

The classes are taught by Janet Polozola, HMC's certified childbirth educator, and they are free and open to all parents-to-be.

The course meets in Hancock Medical Center's classroom on Mondays from 7 to 9 p.m. for a four-week period.

Classes cover general prenatal topics including films and lectures on breathing and relaxation, exercise and nutrition during pregnancy, what to expect from childbirth, the birth process, and decisions for feeding babies. It is recommended that both parents attend classes.

Those interested in Early Bird Classes (during first and second trimester of pregnancy) may attend a special class offered at HMC.

This segment will cover concerns of parents during pregnancy as well as information about early nutrition and early prenatal exercises.

In addition, new layette items will be given to certain parents choosing to deliver at Hancock Medical Center. These items are to be donated by Riverview Homemakers and Main Street Methodist Church.

Those interested in Prepared Childbirth Classes or the Early Bird segment should call Hancock Medical Center to reserve a space in class. The number is 467-9081 ext. 2320.

Bayshore to raise money for Muscular Dystrophy

ERA Bayshore will participate in a "Day in May" door-to-door fund-raising campaign on Saturday, May 6, to raise money for the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

The firm is a member of ERA Real Estate, the nation's second largest real estate franchise, which has raised nearly $9 million since 1977 as the sole corporate sponsor for MDA from the real estate industry. "Every year, ERA Real Estate targets the first Saturday in May to intensify its year-round fund-raising efforts for MDA," said Patsy Dubuisson with ERA Bayshore. "This year, our firm is making its greatest effort ever to 'volunteer for victory' to help find a cure for muscle-wasting diseases."

Individual brokers have raised as much as $40,000 annually through such events as the door-to-door campaign, golf tournaments and other special events, said Dubuisson.

The money raised nationwide by ERA Real Estate is contributed to national MDA chairman Jerry Lewis for MDA during the Labor Day Telethon.

Last year, ERA offices raised $1 million, and this year, ERA has a nationwide fund-raising target of $1.24 million.

Riverview Cooperative Extension

The regular monthly meeting of the Riverview Cooperative Extension Club was held on April 20 at the home of Margie Welsh. The meeting was called to order by Margie Welsh, president. The devotional was given by Ruby Rothgerber. The educational program was given by Ethel Breaux who spoke on citizenship. She suggested 15 things one could do to be a good neighbor.

Clyde Richardson presented a report on the clothes for newborn babies at Hancock Medical Center.

Claire Jung was chosen 'Sunshine Girl' and will send cards to members who 'need a little sunshine' in their lives.

The president gave a report on a recent trip to the sub-district meeting in Ellisville, where two members modeled dresses which they had made for the fashion revue.

The group was reminded of the Mini Health Fair on May 10 and the Cultural Arts Display on May 12 at the Hancock County Library.

The next meeting will be May 4, when the group will travel to the Point Cadet Museum in Biloxi.

PCES joins students against smoking

First graders at Pass Christian Elementary School became ambassadors of a whole new generation, a generation of children who are free of cigarettes.

They are joining tens of thousands of other children across the nation in the Smoke-Free Class of 2000 (SFC 2000) project. This ambitious project is sponsored by the American Cancer Society, the American Heart Association and the American Lung Association.

This 12-year education and awareness campaign focuses on the children who entered first grade in the fall of 1988 and will graduate in the spring of the year 2000. The program is part of the response to Surgeon General C. Everett Koop's call for a smoke-free generation of Americans by the year 2000.

We are asking the children to promise not to smoke, and to ask their brothers and sisters, friends, teachers and parents not to smoke.

HANCOCK COUNTY'S 1989 SALUTE TO BUSINESS, INDUSTRY AND JOHN C. STENNIS SPACE CENTER

in Cooperation with the HANCOCK COUNTY CHAMBER OF COMMERCE and the HANCOCK COUNTY BOARD OF SUPERVISORS

AERIAL VIEW OF JOHN C. STENNIS SPACE CENTER, HANCOCK COUNTY, MISSISSIPPI

Stennis Space Center

Economic impact provides catalyst for county's growth

In October 1961, the federal government announced its selection of a site in Hancock County to locate the nation's test facility for static firing the Saturn V first and second stages for the Apollo manned lunar landing program.

The space program has impacted the county since that announcement, and today Stennis Space Center, its resident agencies and companies have an estimated $439 million impact on the Gulf Coast community's economy. Of approximately 5,400 employees, 19 percent live in Hancock County.

Local and county officials recognize the influence the space center has had on the economic base, and see the county's future being shaped by the growth of current programs and plans for the future.

Waveland Mayor Johnny Longo said of the space center, "The test site has been marvelous. You have the availability of some high-tech jobs that people can get involved in. It provides wonderful employment, and it has brought us such wonderful citizens from around the country. In keeping with the thinking of a lot of people, I want to keep a touch of the old but I have to have a lot of the new, also. When new people come in, it gives you a cross-section of ideas, philosophies, ways of life, and it makes a small community, even though it is small, metropolitan, if you will."

Mayor Vic Franckiewicz of Bay St. Louis noted that "spinoff" companies developed recently from activities at the Stennis Center offer "strong potential" for growth. He said, "We as a community need to be looking for ways that these small companies like those that have spun off of Navy activities can be cultivated and made profitable here rather than some place else."

Local employment, according to Franckiewicz, "was a big impact relative to our economic base but nowhere near what its potential is. I think we've only seen the tip of the iceberg of Stennis' impact."

Ronnie Cuevas, president of the Board of Supervisors, said, "The space center, of course, is a major contributor to the economic development of this county. It has increased in strength over the past several years from about 1,500 employees to about 5,400 now, and we're looking forward to that increasing over the next five years because we have part of the Advanced Solid Rocket Motor System, and the Air Force has its Advanced Launch System which is already under construction there."

Cuevas said that the county ranks 15th in the state in assessed evaluation. "We are the fastest growing county in the state and a lot of this is attributed to the development that has been done at Stennis with all the satellite businesses that have spun from it and all the support activities that come from it."

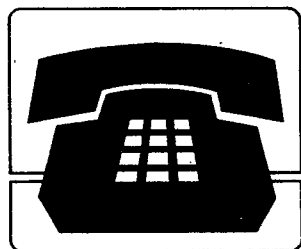

Ronnie Artigues, president of the Port and Harbor Commission, stated, "There's no question that there's been a tremendous impact from Stennis. As far as I'm concerned, it's been the catalyst of the growth. You're talking about 5,400 jobs in a county of 25,000 people. It's a tremendous impact, and they're very optimistic about them growing, too. They had a tremendous economic impact, and I think that in the future they'll help our development to an extent with 'spinoff' companies."

Local and county officials recognize the influence the space center has had on the economic base, and see the county's future being shaped by the growth of current programs and plans for the future.

Success of local industry tied to community's prosperity

The Port and Harbor Commission is pleased to sponsor the county's third annual Salute to Business and Industry.

Our April 28 breakfast program, presented in cooperation with the Board of Supervisors and the Chamber of Commerce, will be held as part of the statewide salute that recognizes the contributions that business and industry make to the economy.

Hancock County's business and industry community represents a blend of local and national ventures which provide diversified goods and services.

Whether a company is locally-owned and employs a few employees or is part of a national organization employing large numbers of our residents, each contributes to our economic base.

Through salaries and taxes, these businesses and industries keep Hancock County on the move, and their success is tied directly to the prosperity of our community.

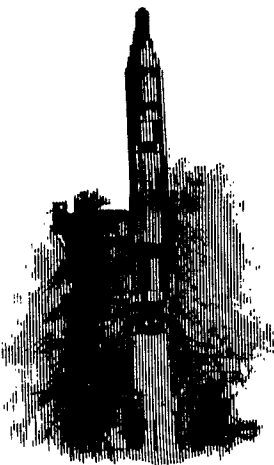

This year's salute will highlight the contributions of the Stennis Space Center and the companies which employ more than half of the work force there.

It is also appropriate that this program coincides with "Coast Encounters," a coastwide community involvement program that emphasizes the importance of education to our future prosperity.

The commission invites the public to join in our salute to existing business and industry, and to support the goals which will ensure our continued growth.

NASA support companies employ 3,500

The third annual Salute to Business and Industry recognizes the John C. Stennis Space Center and the various companies which perform vital services to the center's operation.

These companies employ approximately 3,500 of the total center employment of 5,400.

Following are brief descriptions of the companies which support NASA and some of the resident government agencies.

Rockwell International-Rocketdyne Divisions's field organization employs approximately 340 people at the Stennis Center.

The Rocketdyne-SSC task is to determine the flight worthiness of the three main engines located in the aft end of the Space Shuttle orbiter. These engines assist in providing the boost at liftoff and then they propel the orbiter away from the Earth's gravitational pull. The powerful main engines can safely be test fired and operated in huge concrete and steel structures before they are installed in the orbiter and used in an actual launch.

This task is accomplished at Rocketdyne-SSC by securing the engines in test stands, where they are fed thousands of gallons of propellants and "hot fired" during simulated launch and space flight conditions.

SSC's unique facilities allow Rocketdyne-SSC to hot fire the engines for various periods of time under different operating conditions to determine that the engines are ready to perform when the launch countdown sequence ends and liftoff begins.

BAMSI, Inc., is a minority-owned and actively managed high technology business firm, incorporated in 1978 in Florida to pursue business in government and industry.

BAMSI's first major contract opportunity was provided through Pan Am World Airways as its subcontractor to operate and maintain the entire UNIVAC 1050-II computer system on the Base Supply Project for Patrick Air Force Base, Fla. BAMSI continues to perform these services for Raytheon Service Co. in its fifth contract year.

Currently, BAMSI provides engineering documentation, drafting and CADD services at the Stennis Space Center.

Lockheed Engineering and Sciences Co. is a subsidiary of the Lockheed Corp. and a member of the Missiles and Space Systems Group. It is chartered by the corporation to provide technical support services to government agencies, commercial and foreign entities. Contracts are currently held with NASA, the U.S. Army, the Environmental Protection Agency and the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

At the Stennis Center, Lockheed conducts research in the development and experimental demonstration of the use of remotely sensed data, including design and development of electro-optical sensors, design and development of ground data processing systems, fundamental research in sensor and sensor data characteristics and requirements, and scientific investigations in resource disciplinary areas as they relate to measurements from remote platforms.

Quad S Co. is the security contractor at the Stennis Center. The company is based in Solana Beach, Calif.

Quad S employs more than 60 employees at the space center. The overall mission is to support the space program and tenants at the center by ensuring the safety and security of all their personnel and related property. The company's tasks include visitor and traffic control, investigations and enforcement of NASA rules and regulations.

Mason Chamberlain employs approximately 1,700 people at the Mississippi Army Ammunition Plant. The company implements and operates a manufacturing complex for the production of 155mm M483A1 artillery projectiles. The plant consists of three separate manufacturing complexes: the Projectile Metal Parts area; the Cargo Metal Parts area; and the Load, Assemble and Pack area. The plant also includes support and administrative facilities.

Williams Wrecking & Construction Co. is a 100 percent minority-owned business registered in the State of Mississippi. The company was established in 1945 and operated as a family venture. Bennie Williams, the current president, assumed ownership of the firm in 1966, providing demolition services on a competitive basis in and around Gulfport. The firm has shown a steady growth from 1971 to the present. The majority of this growth has been contracted in areas of light construction and maintenance contracts.

In October 1978, the company negotiated a contract with Pan Am World Services to perform site maintenance support services at the Stennis Center.

William Tate, a Bay St. Louis native, joined the firm in 1979 as resident project manager of the Site Maintenance Branch at the space center. This branch employs approximately 60 people, and provides the facility with paint maintenance, roads and grounds maintenance, and drayage and labor support.

Sverdrup Technology Inc., a subsidiary of Sverdrup

Corp. based in St. Louis, Mo., provides technical support services at the Stennis Center. The company supports the NASA Space Shuttle program, NASA programs engaged in research and development of remote sensing and other space application programs; and other resident federal and state agencies and industrial contractors engaged in space, oceanography and environmental programs.

Sverdrup provides test complex, engineering, data, and laboratory and field services in the conduct of aerospace, oceanography and environmental research activities, and the continuing operation and maintenance of selected facilities and systems at the center.

Current employment is 407, and Sverdrup plans to hire 30 additional employees.

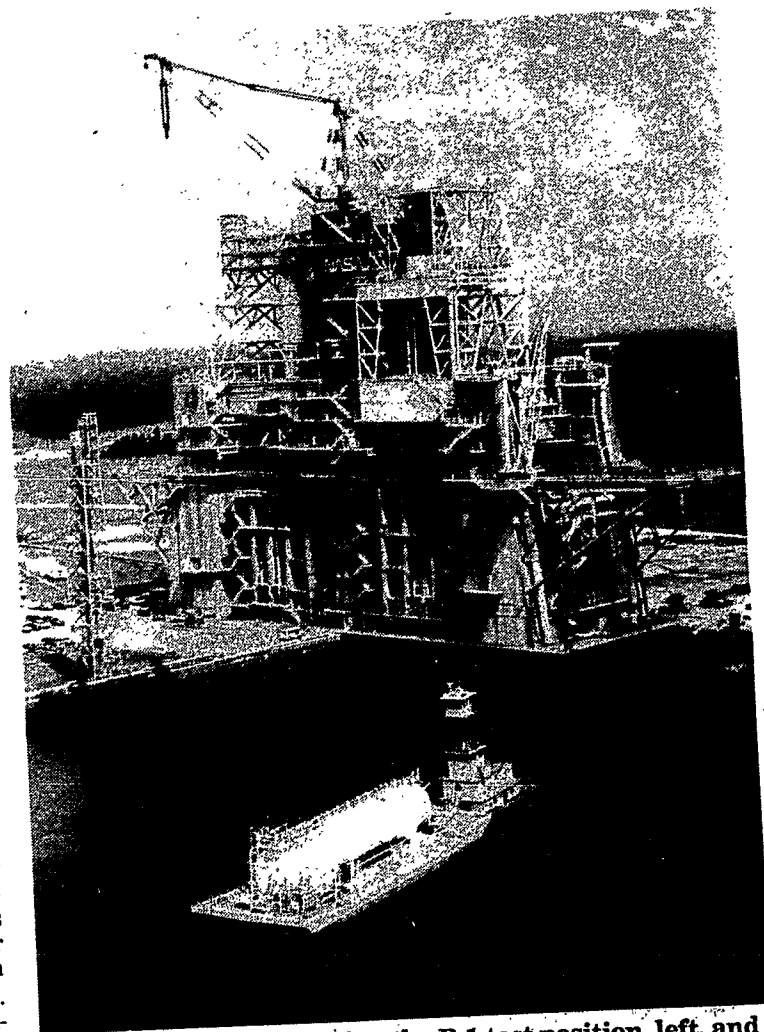

Pan Am World Services Inc. provides support services for facility operations at the John C. Stennis Space Center. Services provided by Pan Am fall into four broad categories: operation and maintenance of Stennis Space Center real and installed property; institutional services; supply and equipment management; and engineering services.

It is chartered by the corporation to provide technical support services to government agencies, commercial and foreign entities. Contracts are currently held with NASA, the U.S. Army, the Environmental Protection Agency and the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

At the Stennis Center, Lockheed conducts research in the development and experimental demonstration of the use of remotely sensed data, including design and development of electro-optical sensors, design and development of ground data processing systems, fundamental research in sensor and sensor data characteristics and requirements, and scientific investigations in resource disciplinary areas as they relate to measurements from remote platforms.

Quad S Co. is the security contractor at the Stennis Center. The company is based in Solana Beach, Calif.

Quad S employs more than 60 employees at the space center. The overall mission is to support the space program and tenants at the center by ensuring the safety and security of all their personnel and related property. The company's tasks include visitor and traffic control, investigations and enforcement of NASA rules and regulations.

Mason Chamberlain employs approximately 1,700 people at the Mississippi Army Ammunition Plant. The company implements and operates a manufacturing complex for the production of 155mm M483A1 artillery projectiles. The plant consists of three separate manufacturing complexes: the Projectile Metal Parts area; the Cargo Metal Parts area; and the Load, Assemble and Pack area. The plant also includes support and administrative facilities.

Williams Wrecking & Construction Co. is a 100 percent minority-owned business registered in the State of Mississippi. The company was established in 1945 and operated as a family venture. Bennie Williams, the current president, assumed ownership of the firm in 1966, providing demolition services on a competitive basis in and around Gulfport. The firm has shown a steady growth from 1971 to the present. The majority of this growth has been contracted in areas of light construction and maintenance contracts.

In October 1978, the company negotiated a contract with Pan Am World Services to perform site maintenance support services at the Stennis Center.

William Tate, a Bay St. Louis native, joined the firm in 1979 as resident project manager of the Site Maintenance Branch at the space center. This branch employs approximately 60 people, and provides the facility with paint maintenance, roads and grounds maintenance, and drayage and labor support.

Sverdrup Technology Inc., a subsidiary of Sverdrup

Corp. based in St. Louis, Mo., provides technical support services at the Stennis Center. The company supports the NASA Space Shuttle program, NASA programs engaged in research and development of remote sensing and other space application programs; and other resident federal and state agencies and industrial contractors engaged in space, oceanography and environmental programs.

Sverdrup provides test complex, engineering, data, and laboratory and field services in the conduct of aerospace, oceanography and environmental research activities, and the continuing operation and maintenance of selected facilities and systems at the center.

Current employment is 407, and Sverdrup plans to hire 30 additional employees.

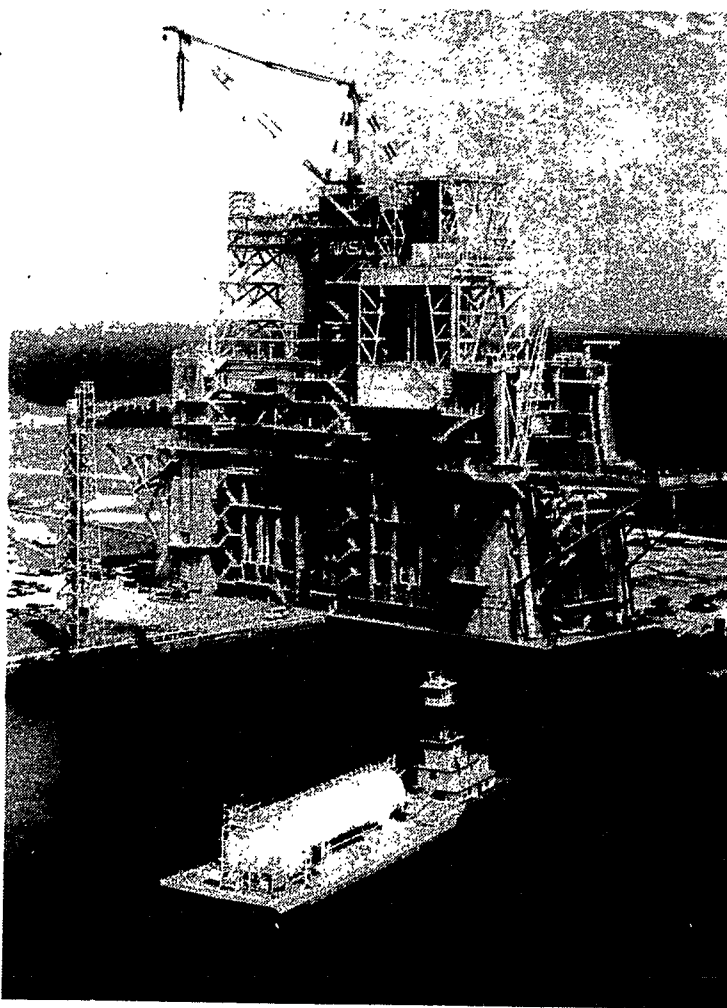

Pan Am World Services Inc. provides support services for facility operations at the John C. Stennis Space Center. Services provided by Pan Am fall into four broad categories: operation and maintenance of Stennis Space Center real and installed property; institutional services; supply and equipment management; and engineering services.

SALUTES

BUSINESS AND INDUSTRY IN HANCOCK COUNTY!

PORT BIENVILLE RAILROAD—The Hancock County Port & Harbor Commission owns and operates the Port Bienville Railroad which extends 8.6 miles from the park to a connection with CSX Railroad. Port Bienville owns two 40-ton locomotives which provide switching service for industrial clients. Industries currently using the railroad's services include, Borg-Warner, Atlas Powder, and Bienville Steel. The water storage tank in background holds 250,000 gallons for potable water and fire protection.

THE COMMISSIONERS OF THE
PORT & HARBOR COMMISSION
AND IT'S EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR
SALUTE THE STENNIS SPACE CENTER
AND ITS CONTRACTORS FOR THEIR CONTRIBUTIONS TO THE LOCAL ECONOMY.

C1

The Hancock County Port & Harbor Commission is in contact with new local commercial and industrial staff providing the quality of life residents consider before locating.

The chairman of the Port & Harbor Commission's economic development activities participates in committees such as the Business and Industry Development Committee.

"The Port & Harbor Commission works to attract new prospects to the industrial base of the county. It provides information and demographic data to the business community."

Chamber of Commerce

Putting Hancock County's 'best foot forward'

The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce is the first contact newcomers have with the local community. The chamber staff provides information on the quality of life that potential residents and companies consider before deciding where to locate.

The chamber also supports the Port and Harbor Commission's economic development activities and actively participates in cooperative programs, such as the annual Salute to Business and Industry.

"The Port and Harbor Commission works with the larger prospects that are looking at the industrial parks. The chamber works with small business prospects by providing such information as traffic counts and demographics," said Libby Roland, executive director of the chamber.

She cited the recent leadership seminar, held in conjunction with the Mississippi Power Company. "The seminars are held in order to promote county unity and to keep businesses aware of what changes need to be made as based on comments and observations from industrial prospects."

Roland described the Mississippi Gulf Coast area as "an untapped resource." Of Hancock County's potential, she said, "The potential is here. It's a good, prime prospect because of the available transportation network and the progressive growth of the Stennis Space Center, among other factors."

She also noted the influx of people who are retiring or leaving government employment and opening their own businesses here. "We've had a good surge as far as government-related businesses are concerned within the last three years."

The area also attracts visitors who are interested in the historical aspects of the county. Buccaneer Park also draws visitors throughout the year, according to Roland.

"We get numerous calls from people who are coming to work for various contractors at the Stennis Center. We provide them with a newcomer's package which contains information on civic organizations, churches, schools, realtors and everything else they need in order to set up a residence. Once they get here, they contact the chamber for referrals for everything from hairdressers to home owners insurance and car repairs."

The chamber, in turn, provides a newcomers' listing to participating members which may be used to promote their businesses.

Education is a key to attracting new residences and business, according to Roland.

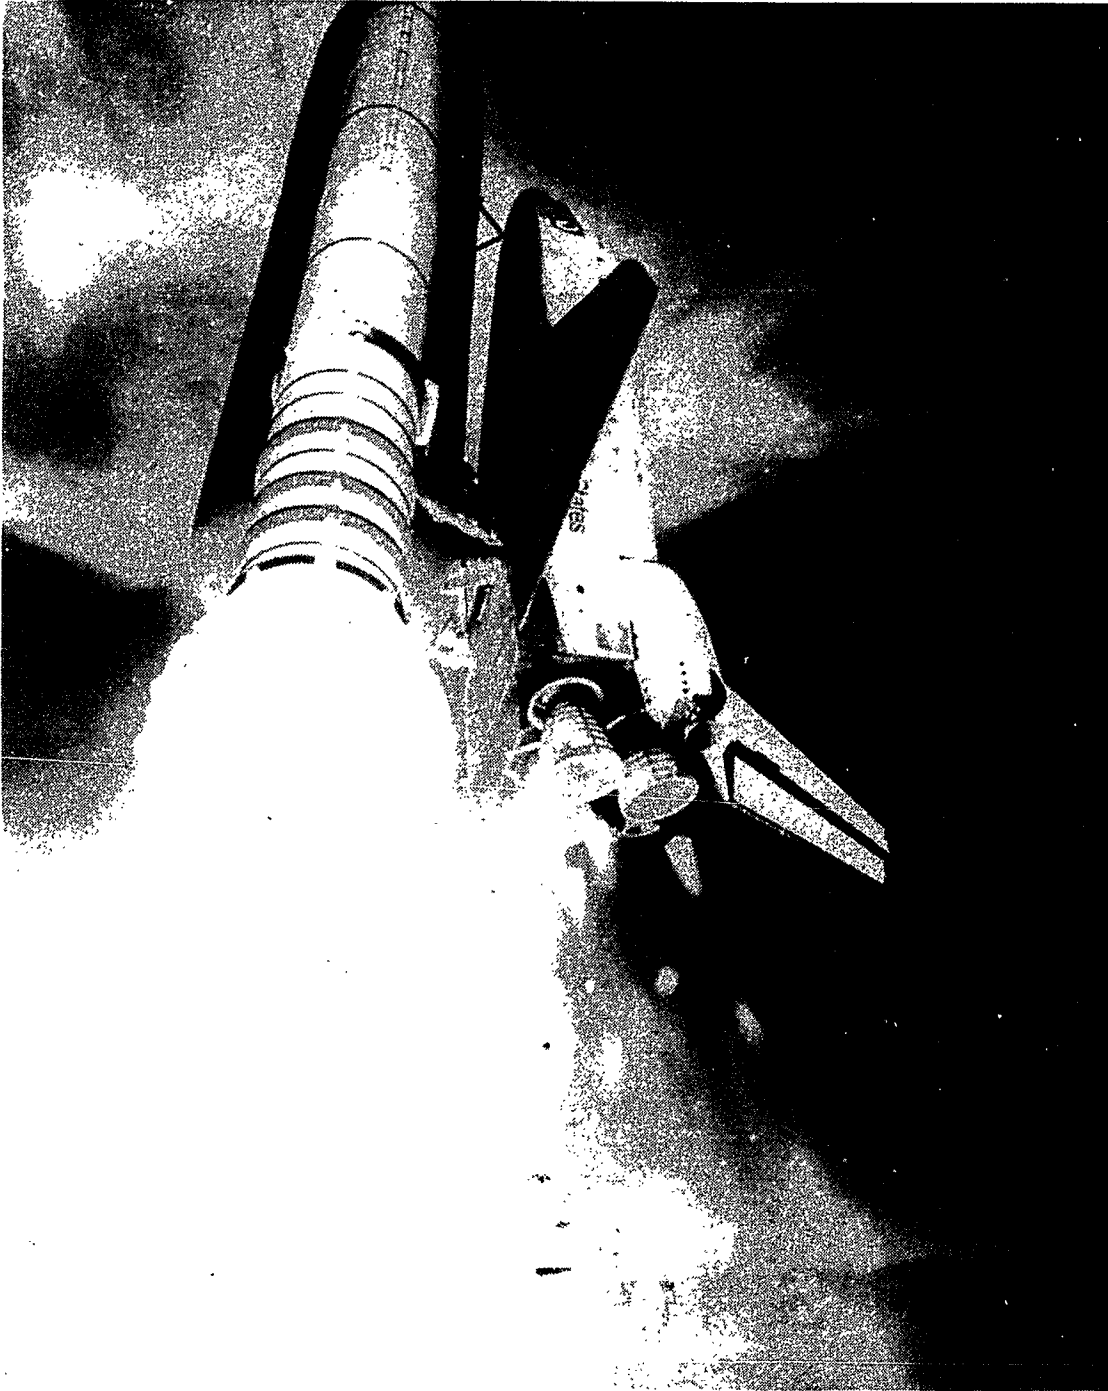

"The school systems in this county have come a long way, but there are still changes that need to be made in order to compete with other areas. Part of the burden needs to be taken by the business community because one hand feeds the other. We can't have a good business climate without education and we can't have a good education system without the support of business," she said.

The chamber enjoys a good working relationship with the local and county school superintendents, and Roland cited the ongoing Adopt-A-School program as an example of cooperative efforts in improving the quality of education.

The Bay St. Louis Business Association, according to Roland, "has done a terrific job as far as the revitalization of downtown, and community activities such as the free concerts are very attractive features to newcomers."

Concluding, she said, "The more we have to offer to new residents and businesses, the more opportunity we will have to keep them here instead of losing them to other areas. A strong chamber membership is vital to improving the quality of life and nurturing our business climate."

NASA's Shuttle Engines prior to flight are tested at the John C. Stennis Space Center

At Hancock Bank, we've always been well aware that strong ties to the community we serve are vital. We recognize the importance of those ties and constantly strive to strengthen the bond between ourselves and the people we serve.
